

COMPANY DEFENDS CLAIM IN FIRE INSURANCE SUIT

Head of Brandy Firm Says Burning of 'Rare Drug' Caused $600,000 Loss of Contracts.

Bought Santonin Six Days Before Blaze.

12 Risk Concerns Have Charged $125,000 Action by Chemical Makers Is 'Gigantic Swindle.'

Officers of the Brandy Corporation, chemical manufacturers, were put on the stand in Federal Judge Paris' court today in an attempt to show that their claim for $125,000 for a fire loss in 1930 is valid.

The claim, which is based principally on the alleged loss of $122,000 worth of santonin, described by counsel as a "rare Russian drug," is disputed by attorneys for 12 insurance companies who allege the company never possessed the drug and that the whole claim was an attempt to "perpetrate a gigantic swindle and fraud."

Jack G. Edwards, thin, dark-haired president of the Brandy Corporation, testified the santonin had been bought six days before the fire occurred on March 9, 1930, and was destroyed in the blaze, the loss resulting in a suspension of activities by the company and loss of contracts amounting to $600,000 for a product, known as "Wee-Bill," which it manufactured.

Tells of Drug's Purchase.

Edwards testified the santonin was bought in 1930 from the Cosmetics Sales & Importing Co., which defense counsel alleges was only a dummy organization operated by Arthur G. Whittaker, chemical engineer and general manager of the Brandy Corporation.

Whittaker, according to Edwards, set up with a shotgun for three nights at the laboratory, 804 North Levee street, to guard the santonin supply, later to be manufactured by "Wee-Bill," and sold to Southern drug plants.

Edwards, according to his promoters' claims, that cottonseed might be dipped in it and would thereupon produce plants resistant to the boll-weevil.

The bill for the first premium of $150 arrived two days after the fire, according to Edwards, and he tendered payment to Whittaker and the agency, both of whom refused. The valuable drug and the entire equipment of the company were destroyed, Edwards said.

Didn't Handle Finances.

On cross-examination by William S. Hoggsett, attorney for the National Fire Insurance Co., first defendant in the suit, Edwards said that, although he was president, he knew little of the financial condition of the company. He denied that a signature of his showing $30,000 assets and $100,000 liabilities was his and said he left financial matters to Whittaker, "whom we were paying $500 a month as chemical engineer."

As a matter of fact, your company never had $500 a month, did you?" Hoggsett asked. When Edwards replied that he was "cert in the company owed them anything," Mr. Whittaker had taken charge of it," the attorney asked two elderly women in the courtroom to stand up. The president was unaware if they had any claims.

Questioned about two products of the company other than "Wee-Bill," Edwards was a loss either to name the ingredients or to tell what use they were made.

Cochran and Dyer Dispute In Congress Over St. Louis' Need For U. S. Funds to Aid Distressed

Latter Asserts "City Will Care for Her Own"—Colleague Contradicts Him, Saying Delegation Asked for Relief.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Two St. Louis Congressmen engaged in a sharp dispute yesterday afternoon over whether St. Louis needs assistance from the Federal Government in caring for the needy and unemployed. Representative Dyer (Rep.), told the House in the debate on the Garner relief bill that "St. Louis will care for her own." Representative Cochran (Dem.), retorted that at that very moment an official delegation from St. Louis was in the Capitol seeking Federal aid.

Representative Ragon (Dem.), Arkansas, and a member of the Ways and Means Committee, said the committee had been informed that 125,000 persons in St. Louis were being fed by charity, and that the city was reaching the end of its resources. Dyer interrupted with a vigorous denial, declaring that St. Louis is "taking care of the situation," and that Mayor Miller had not asked for outside assistance.

"The district I represent would be allowed about $7,500,000 (for public works) under this bill," Dyer went on. "With this large sum the city of St. Louis would not be able to give work to more than 500 people, so we do not want it at this time, as it will not materially aid the unemployed, and we prefer to wait for this money until the country is in better financial condition."

Says State Can't Accept Loan.

Aluding to the section of the bill providing for loans to states, cities and counties, Dyer said Missouri could gain no benefit from it because such loans were prohibited by the State Constitution.

"So there is only one thing left," he said, "and that is the $100,000,000 dote for the President to expend in relief," he said. "So far the people of St. Louis have been able to take care of the unemployed of that city, and nobody has asked me to get any dote from the Government. They do not want this legislation as written, and as one of their representatives I am in honor bound to vote against it."

In reply, Cochran told the House that he and Dyer had been approached in the corridor by a St. Louis delegation appealing for Federal aid only a few moments before Dyer's speech was delivered.

"I am amazed at the statement of my colleague that Missouri and St. Louis do not want a relief bill passed," he said. "This measure, far from being perfect, will result in the passage of a relief bill before Congress adjourns."

Cochran Contradicts Dyer.

"Just a few minutes ago Mr. Muench, city counselor of St. Louis, accompanied by E. Q. Steger and Mr. Myers, who have been handling relief funds in St. Louis, talked with us in the corridor. They came to Washington to get relief, or to get the bill so worded that St. Louis and Missouri can participate in the benefits if it becomes necessary. So far we have met the situation, but it is becoming more desperate daily. I hope we will not need it, but certainly provision should be made to enable states, counties and municipalities to secure aid if it becomes necessary."

Examination of the Congressional Record today disclosed that Dyer had "revised" his remarks so that he is recorded as saying: "We will likely need help if there is not an improvement soon. This assistance should be a loan, though, and not a gift. Otherwise it would not be fair to the taxpayers."

MRS. E. B. McLEAN TESTIFIES AGAINST GASTON B. MEANS

Wife of Publisher Details Deal by Which She Paid $104,000 as Ransom for Lindbergh Baby.

PROSECUTOR TELLS OF NEGOTIATIONS

Asserts Defendant Arranged Secret Code in Which Victim Was Designated as "No. 11."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Mrs. Edward B. McLean, estranged wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, took the witness stand today to tell a jury her story of being swindled by Gaston B. Means of $104,000 she paid him to recover the kidnapped and murdered Lindbergh baby.

Means is on trial on charges of larceny and embezzlement of the money. The prosecution asserted that, before Mrs. McLean aired Means had approached a connection of the Lindbergh family with proposals for similar negotiations. Means the detective once an investigator for the Department of Justice, and who served time in Federal prison for prohibition violation, faced his accusers unperturbed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. He stretched his legs, twirled his hat, and eyed Mrs. McLean as she gave her reasons for employing him last March 4, many weeks before the flyer's son was found dead.

told Means that I had great sympathy for the Lindbergh family," Mrs. McLean testified. "I told him that for five or six years my first son (now dead) was the subject of threats of kidnapping and I had to keep guards around him and it made me a nervous wreck."

One Woman on Jury.

The chronology of Means' alleged negotiations was given to the Court by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover before a jury of 11 men and two women. The jury accepted the defense's challenged eight talesmen and the prosecution four. Justice James M. Proctor admitted the prosecution's statement charging Means' original negotiations after the defense strenuously objected.

The prosecution said that about an hour before Mrs. McLean telephoned Means last March 4, Means had asked Robert F. Fleming, a Maryland real estate man, to put him in touch with Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, brother of Harry Guggenheim and a friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Fleming arranged a meeting for the same day, Rover said, but Means failed to keep the appointment because Mrs. McLean had meantime entered the picture. Several days later, however, Means did meet Guggenheim and several others at Fleming's home, Rover continued, and there it was arranged that Means should deliver the baby to Guggenheim.

Gets Use of Envoy's Auto.

Following Means' directions, Guggenheim later secured the use of the private automobile and driver of the Austrian Minister, Rover said, for the delivery of the baby. But, added Rover, Guggenheim never afterward heard from Means.

The prosecutor told of Means' alleged negotiations to secure the "kidnaper" against false moves by Mrs. McLean, and with representatives by Means that he was in contact not only with the real kidnapers, but with those with whom Charles H. Curtis of Norfolk, supposedly was negotiating, and with those to whom the "Jafie," author of the want ads, actually paid $50,000 in a futile attempt to recover the baby.

Arranged Secret Code.

Rover said that Means cautioned Mrs. McLean against telling her lawyers anything about her negotiations, and provided a secret code by which he, Means, and Mrs. McLean should communicate with each other. Under this code, Means was to be known as "Hogan," because Mrs. McLean has the lawyer, Frank J. Hogan. The code also provided that "The Fox," the name of Albert W. Fox, another of Mrs. McLean's lawyers, should signify any of the kidnapers or their gang. The Lindbergh baby was to be referred to by any of the three words, "package, manuscript, book."

Mrs. McLean would be known under the code by the number "eleven," or figures adding to this sum. Means also assigned numbers to himself and the kidnapers.

VERDICT AGAINST LACY FOR $10,978 IN LO LORDO SUIT

Jury Holds Attorney Withheld That Amount of Assets of Estate of Dry Goods Peddler.

ACTION BROUGHT BY ADMINISTRATOR

Brother of Deceased Says He Cannot Read but Signed Many Papers for Lawyer.

A Circuit Court jury decided today that Verne R. C. Lacy, formerly attorney for the administrator of the estate of Vincenzo LoLordo, had withheld $10,978 of its assets and returned a verdict against him in that amount.

The verdict was in a suit brought by John LoLordo, illiterate brother of Vincenzo and administrator of the estate. Vincenzo, a dry goods peddler, died seven years ago.

John LoLordo testified he had signed "plenty of papers" at Lacy's request, but knew nothing of their contents. Lacy maintained that LoLordo received all the funds of the estate which were due him as administrator.

Full Amount Argued For.

The jury's verdict was for the full amount sought by LoLordo's counsel in argument to the jury. Counsel for Lacy appealed to the jury to find in favor of their client, and said a verdict against him would be a reflection on his integrity.

Lacy's attorney, Elroy V. Sellick, pointed to his client as an upstanding, honest lawyer, whose reputation was being attacked. A lawyer who couldn't be trusted, Sellick told the jury, "might as well take down his shingle."

John LoLordo testified he neither could read nor write in English or in his native Italian, but that he had been taught to sign his name. He performed that feat several times in Lacy's law office, he testified, without knowing for what purpose. LoLordo testified he never made himself clear and on one occasion, when asked if he charged Lacy with concealing assets of the estate, responded negatively.

That is what his petticoat does charge, and Lacy has denied it, affirming that he not only owes the estate no money, but that the estate owes him.

Lacy Claims $25,000.

This came about, Lacy testified, because John LoLordo obtained an assignment in 1925 of the interest of a surviving brother and sister in the estate, and signed that over to Lacy. Lacy, he said, had interest, the three claims amounting to about $25,000.

Out of the proceeds of this $25,000 assignment, Lacy said, he was to make an adjustment of claims against the estate, including his own as attorney and as trustee for some mortgaged property.

The property at 3103 Washington avenue and 3220 Washington avenue, was sold by Lacy as trustee for the estate, John LoLordo claims the net proceeds were about $18,000, and he, as administrator, got none of it. Lacy claims to have turned over to him what remained after the payment of claims.

Part of the money, Lacy testified, about $3900, was given to LoLordo after the sale of one piece of property, because LoLordo wanted to bid on the other. In return LoLordo, he said, signed a document releasing Lacy from the necessity of accounting for that amount of the estate's funds.

This transaction was denied by LoLordo, who testified he had not received the $3900 and that he had not been interested in buying the property. As a matter of fact, he did not buy it.

Lacy admitted he never had filed a final accounting and settlement of the estate in Probate Court but insisted he had turned over to LoLordo all the assets of the estate. A Probate Court order instructing him to pay $2285 to LoLordo's widow in Italy has never been complied with, Lacy said, because there are now no assets in the estate.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 8.—Amelia Earhart Putnam received a warm official welcome from Gen. Italo Balbo, the Air Minister, as she emerged from the cabin of an army plane which brought her from Milan today. The Atlantic solo flyer was hatless and her hair tousled. Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the American Ambassador, kissed her, and Gen. Balbo and Under Secretary of Aeronautics, Raffaello Ricordi, greeted her. The most of them Italian women, were on hand to express their admiration of Miss Earhart's achievement. "I am sorry Italy did not have a chance to greet you first," Gen. Balbo said, and Miss Earhart smiled.

Among the women welcome was Lucezia Bori, the Metropolitan Opera star and house guest of the Garretts. Premier Mussolini tonight will give a dinner in honor of Miss Earhart, but Gen. Balbo will preside in his stead. Tomorrow the Premier will receive Mrs. Putnam and her husband and the Pope probably will give them an audience later.

ECONOMY FURLONGS TO HAVE NEW SENATE VOTE

La Follette Backing Hoover Plan to Replace 10 Per Cent Pay Cut in Bill as "Step Toward Five-Day Week."

VETERANS' SECTION SAVINGS DEFEATED

Measure, Carrying $238,000,000 Slash in Expense, Stands at $185,286,000; Lay-Offs Would Cut It to $158,286,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The national economy bill is near the point of passage in the Senate. It was much reduced by the striking out of $48,714,000 in savings which were to have been obtained by cutting war veterans' allowances. The measure's estimated total of economies in Government outlays now stands at $185,286,000.

One more attempt to substitute President Hoover's furlough plan for the flat 10 per cent cut in Government salaries faces the Senate before it can pass the bill and send it back to the House for conference. The Senate agreed today to reconsider the vote by which it previously had rejected the plan.

This was proposed by Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, who hopes to muster a few more votes than were cast for it yesterday and thus approve it. It was rejected by the small margin of 41 to 38. La Follette is urging the furlough plan as "a step toward a five-day week," which, he says, he thinks is one of the basic factors in the solution of economic problems.

The vote on La Follette's motion to reconsider was 36 to 33. The action paved the way for a vote to adopt the Hoover plan.

Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, charged in the Senate that President Hoover had "wrecked" the economy bill.

Rejection of the entire section affecting veterans came at the conclusion of yesterday's session, and it was done by the overwhelming vote of 63 to 14, after members of the committee sponsoring the bill told the Senate the plan was not practicable at this time.

The House, too, has rejected this economy, but it cut the total of the bill down to less than a third of the total approved by the Senate.

Cutting Down the Savings.

As reported to the Senate by its bipartisan Economy Committee, the economy bill carried savings of $238,000,000 and this amount was declared to be necessary to help the new $1,118,500,000 revenue bill balance the budget.

The exemption of Federal salaries below $1000 from the flat 10 per cent pay cut reduced the saving $40,000,000 to $238,000,000. Defeat of the veterans' curtailed expenditures section cuts $48,714,000 more from the total, leaving only a saving for the whole bill of $185,286,000.

In place of the seven sections tightening the requirements for cash allowances and institutional care, the Senate, like the House, retained only a paragraph providing for a joint congressional committee to consider veterans' legislation and report Jan. 1 as to possible changes.

The Administration proposal for furloughing employees for a month without pay, or placing them on a five-day week, is estimated to save $20,000,000 compared to $117,000,000 estimated for the 10 per cent slash. If this finally carries, the economy bill's total of savings will be cut to $158,286,000, or $77,714,000 less than the $238,000,000 estimated as required to help balance the budget.

Veterans' Section Vote.

Only 11 Republicans and three Democrats opposed the motion by Bratton (Dem.), New Mexico, to eliminate the veterans' savings. The Republicans were Bingham, Borah, Dickinson, Hale, Hebert, Metcalf, Moore, Norbeck, Reed, Vandenberg and White. The Democrats were Bulow, Glass and King.

In the debate on the veterans' section of the economy program Chairman Jones (Rep.), Washington, of the Economy Committee, said: "Let the Senate determine whether it should go into this field. I don't think it should."

Senator Glass said he had voted for the committee's action in recommending the curtailments; and

BANKS TO HANDLE NEW 2-CENT CHECK TAX FOR DEPOSITOR

Levy Will Be Charged to Account—Government Printing 4 Billion 3-Ct. Stamps.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Collection of the new 2-cent tax on checks, drafts and similar instruments, which goes into effect on June 21, will be handled entirely by the banks.

The Internal Revenue Bureau said today the banks would pay the tax to the Treasury at the end of each month. The banks will keep count of the number of checks drawn by each depositor and at the end of the month enter the charges against his account and enclose a statement in the depositor's canceled checks. Counter checks, which are cashed by the depositor at the bank, are not taxed.

The new postal rates go into effect next month. The higher rates on second-class mail become effective on July 1, while the 3-cent rate on first-class mail is effective July 6. There is no change in post cards, which remain at 1 cent.

The Government is printing 4,000,000,000 3-cent stamps at the rate of 100,000,000 a day. It is distributing to postmasters 1,000,000 1-cent stamps to use with 2-cent stamps and 2-cent stamped envelopes on hand.

The consumers of electric power furnished by municipal, State or governmental agencies will pay the same tax as that by consumers of power furnished by private companies, officials said. The tax of 3 per cent is levied on the consumer and will be collected by the distributing company, which must transmit it to the Treasury once a month.

The increase is expected to yield $3,000,000 annually in revenue.

OSAGE INDIAN HEIRESS FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Mary Elkins Victim of Alcoholism, Coroner Says; Wed Three Times.

By the Associated Press.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 8.—Mary Elkins, Osage Indian oil heiress whose lavish spending and marital adventures focused public attention on her for the last decade, was found dead today in her home at Ivy Wild, a suburb. Acting Coroner Gillett said death was due to excessive use of liquor. Sheriff's officers had been seeking her for a week to serve papers on her in connection with an alienation of affections suit brought by a Negro woman.

At one time she was one of the richest of the Osages. When the Osage oil wells were gushing, her holdings were valued at more than $1,000,000. She then had an income exceeding $50,000 a year.

Her first husband was Bobby Corbett, a prizefighter whom she married in 1922 in Kansas City. The marriage was dissolved. Miss Elkins said she was drugged at the time of the ceremony. She accused married Harry Sawyer, Colorado Springs taxicab driver, whom she divorced to marry David Derryberry. She received a preliminary divorce decree from Derryberry last January.

BIG LOSS IN TEXAS FOR FARM & HOME LOAN ASSOCIATION

Took Mortgage on Rio Grande Land "Where Gulf Breezes Blow and Grapefruit Grow."

TRADED IN OTHER HOLDINGS FOR IT

Set Up Reserve to Write Down Values but This Curtailed Funds for Matured Certificates.

Mortgage loans on real estate in the lower Rio Grande Valley, the Texas grapefruit belt exploited by promoters after the collapse of the Florida boom, were a principal factor in bringing about the reorganization of Farm & Home Savings & Loan Association.

George W. Wagner, State Supervisor of Building and Loan Associations, was named receiver Monday for the $50,000,000 investment association which has headquarters at Nevada, Mo., and a branch office in St. Louis at 1125 Locust street.

The association operated in Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, but some time ago traded and consolidated its Texas loans for a $1,600,000 first mortgage on Adams Gardens, near Harrison, Tex., and organized a controlled company to operate the sale of the property.

Adams Gardens, "In the Texas Tropics where Gulf breezes blow and grapefruit grow," was divided into tracts of five to 10 acres, which were offered to persons of means as sites for winter homes where grapefruit might be grown as a source of incidental revenue.

Scaling Down Holdings. But last summer the Texas Bureau of Building and Loan Supervision, taking notice of the depreciation in real estate values, asked the association to scale down the valuation of its holdings by $1,200,000.

A reserve of $1,700,000 was actually set up to take care of depreciation in Texas and elsewhere, but this resulted in tapping the reserve established for retiring matured certificates, with the consequence that the certificates, which under law are retired from net earnings, did not mature within the estimated periods.

The effect of postponing maturities was to decrease the interest return to certificate holders. When they were notified of that action early this year the "whispering campaign" referred to by Wagner in the statement issued after he had been appointed receiver, was intensified.

Many investors sought to withdraw their funds before their maturity dates and brought about a condition which Wagner compared to a run on a bank. Officers of the association were confronted with the difficulty of determining what were the net earnings of the association and what proportion of them each investor was entitled to receive.

To Share Loss Equally. To stop such withdrawals, and insure each investor getting an equitable portion of the assets of the association, the receivership was agreed upon. Wagner has said that investors should lose nothing of their principal. The only loss, he said, should be in lower dividend rate which would be equivalent to loss of about one year's interest return.

Equal consideration will be given to all certificate owners, Wagner said yesterday in Kansas City. Whatever may be the loss, he said, it will be shared equally by owners of prepaid and installment certificates.

Other large loans gave officers of the company something to worry about last year. One was for $100,000 on Majestic Home Sites, St. Louis County subdivision which the association acquired by foreclosure and later sold to a company which is now developing it as Pasadena Park. Out of this investment the association netted $100,000 in cash and mortgages on the residences, the total, providing only slightly less than the amount of the original loan.

$500,000 Loan to College. Another was a $500,000 loan on Martin College, Baptist School at Mexico, Mo. Closing of the school was considered for a time last autumn but the Missouri Baptist General Assembly has undertaken to refinance the college by the sale of bonds.

Farm & Home Savings & Loan Association was the largest organization of its sort in Missouri and was reputed to be the third largest in the country. It had about 50,000 members. Wagner expects that reorganization can be effected and that it will continue in business. Only three building and loan associations have been liquidated in Missouri in the last 25 years.

Advertisements of the Farm & Home Association stressed the safety factor, pointing out that it had earned $17,000,000 in its 33 years of operation. Security in old loans and funds for the education of

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. OPPOSES GRAND BL. VIADUCT WIDENING

Railroads Ask for More Time to File Answers; Hearing at City Hall.

Hearing of the city's application for permission to widen the Grand boulevard viaduct over the railroad tracks was conducted at City Hall today by Commissioner John E. Porter, of the State Public Service Commission. Attorneys for the Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Wabash, Rock Island and Terminal Railroads appeared to ask further time for filing answers to the city's request.

O. P. Owen of counsel for the Public Service Co. told reporters at the hearing that his company was opposed to any order which would place an expense upon it. It has two tracks on the viaduct, and one or both of them would require reconstruction under the city's plan.

L. R. Bowen, chief bridge engineer for the city, related that removal of the present bridge and construction of an entirely new one of the desired width, 100 feet, would cost $900,000, whereas the widening is estimated at $450,000. He described the plans, which have been published. The present crossing, 60 feet wide, was erected in 1889. But for the presence of the railroads and other utilities, the widening would cost only $60,000, the city asserts. It argues that the difference, $390,000, should be borne by the utilities.

Widening of Grand boulevard, between Magnolia avenue and West Pine boulevard, is before condemnation commissioners.

WOMAN, MAN LOSE LIVES IN HIGHWAY AUTO ACCIDENTS

Mrs. Mabel King Fatally Injured When Machine Skids Off Natural Bridge Road.

Two women and a man died yesterday as a result of highway automobile accidents. They were: Mrs. Kate Landin Nichols, 63 years old, of the Coronado Hotel.

Mrs. Mabel King, 34, a widow, 3814A St. Ferdinand avenue. Lester Sizemore, 21, a butcher, of 3673 Lafayette avenue.

Mrs. King died at St. Louis County Hospital at 3 p. m. of a fractured skull suffered several hours earlier when the automobile in which she was riding skidded off Natural Bridge road and upset in a ditch half a mile east of the Municipal Airport.

Joseph Stryanin, 1522 Prairie avenue, the driver, told county officers that the brakes locked, causing the machine to skid on the wet pavement. Mrs. Jetta McFarland, 3417 Morgan street, another passenger, suffered a fractured leg. Stryanin was not hurt.

One Killed, Six Hurt in Collision. Sizemore was killed and his mother, Mrs. Irene Sizemore, was injured when their machine was demolished in a collision with a truck near Imperial, Jefferson County, last night. They were returning to St. Louis after visiting relatives at Herculaneum when the machines met head-on at a curve in Highway 61. Sizemore died of a crushed skull. His mother is at Alexian Brothers' Hospital with fractures of the pelvis and leg.

Six persons in the truck were cut and bruised. The driver, who said he was Arthur W. Pohlmeyer, 312 W. Millmore street, was moving the family of George Thompson, formerly of 4842 Pennsylvania avenue, to Fredericktown, Mo.

Mrs. Nichols, the wife of J. B. Nichols, St. Louis manager for the Price Candy Co. of Kansas City, died yesterday at Fulton (Mo.) hospital of a skull injury suffered on May 31 in an accident near Fulton.

Nichols reported that his machine, driven by a Filipino chauffeur, was forced to swerve to avoid a west-bound freight truck, the driver of which continued on. Mrs. Nichols was thrown out when the automobile swerved into a ditch. Nichols and the chauffeur suffered bruises.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nichols will be at the Alexander mortuary, 6175 Delmar boulevard, until 7 o'clock tonight. Funeral services and burial will be at Birmingham, Ala., tomorrow afternoon.

THREE GET $290 IN HOLDUP OF EMERSON AVE. GROCERY

Escape in Auto Driven by Fourth Man After Robbing Ferdinand Wellhoff.

Ferdinand Wellhoff, grocer at 5000 Emerson avenue, was robbed of $290 today by three men, while a companion waited in an automobile outside.

The first man entered Wellhoff's store at 8 a. m. and asked the price of oranges. Wellhoff told him and he ordered a nickel's worth, laying a dollar bill on the counter. Then, before Wellhoff could wrap the purchase, the man said, "Never mind the change. It's a stickup," and at the same moment produced a pistol. He took $40 from Wellhoff's pockets.

A second armed man entered and rifled the cash register, obtaining $10. Then a third man, without a pistol, came into the store and hurried to the safe, where he stole $240. The robbers left together, climbed into their car hurriedly and were driven away.

SLAYER SERVING LIFE TERM WANTS TO BE EXECUTED

Connecticut Doctor Petitions Court, Although Insisting He Is Innocent.

By the Associated Press. HARTFORD, Conn., June 8.—Dr. Harold N. Grillo, who is serving a life sentence for murder, has petitioned the Superior Court to order his execution, but repeated today that he was innocent of the crime.

"There is nothing in my petition for the writ of habeas corpus that can be interpreted as an admission of guilt," he said.

ROOSEVELT TO GET EVIDENCE AS BASIS TO OUST WALKER

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 8.—Evidence purporting to justify Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in removing Mayor James J. Walker from office was ready for delivery to the State's chief executive tonight.

Samuel Seabury, who as counsel to the Hofstadter committee investigating Walker's city administration has spent many months gathering testimony regarding the Mayor's affairs, detailed an associate on his legislative legal staff to carry an analysis of that testimony to Albany.

In mid-afternoon Seabury placed his final approval on a printer's proofs of his 25-page analysis and was assured that the pressed would deliver the finished product in time for him to have them sent to Albany on a train arriving there at 8:05 p. m.

It will be as a private citizen, not as the fact-finding counsel of a legislative committee, that Seabury will present the evidence to the Governor. The letter in which he will ask the Governor to consider the testimony with a view to determining whether it justifies Walker's removal on ethical and legal grounds will be signed as a private citizen.

Evidence Kept Secret. The evidence as presented to the Governor will not be made public by Seabury who will follow the same procedure in the Walker case that enabled him, also as a private citizen, to obtain the removal of another Tammy-supported public official—Sheriff Thomas M. Farley.

The Governor ordered Farley to relinquish his position because of failure to explain large bank deposits; Seabury now gives him evidence which he contends justifies Walker's removal for violation of the city charter, among other things.

The committee counsel, however, will make no specific recommendations in the letter that will accompany his analysis. It is understood, nevertheless, that his report, prepared hurriedly after the Governor last Friday expressed a wish that Seabury would "stop talking and do something," will make clear to Roosevelt that Seabury considers the evidence he has unearthed indisputable grounds for removal.

$43,500 Bonds to Walker.

One of the legal grounds, Seabury has said openly, concerned ownership of bonds of the Reliance Bronze & Steel Co., which received a contract for $43,558 for traffic lights. Seabury said Walker's possession of those bonds—the Mayor said they belonged to Mrs. Walker—violated a section of the city charter forbidding a city official from holding an interest in a firm doing business with the city.

How soon the Governor will act on Seabury's report is uncertain. He removed Sheriff Farley more than a month after Seabury filed his report in that case. It is unlikely action in the Walker case will be as rapid. The Governor must take time to study the analysis together with 400 exhibits pertaining to the Walker testimony. Then he must request the Mayor to reply and it is unlikely that Walker will prepare his statement in much less than two weeks. Then will come public hearings, the Democratic national convention at which Roosevelt hopes to win the presidential nomination, will be over.

5 MEN CONVICTED OF PRACTICING LAW BY RADIO FOR FEES

Executives of 'People's Advisory League' of Detroit Broadcast Advice for $10.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, June 8.—Five officers of the 'People's Advisory League' last night were convicted by a Recorder's Court jury of illegal practice of law. There were alleged to have been executives of the league assisting in such practice.

Those convicted were: James Crews, Advocate-General, and Counsellors Peter G. Rowe, Harry Fletcher, John J. Tierney and Fred Willis. Judge W. McKay Skillman said he would pass sentence next Tuesday. The league officers formerly broadcast over the radio. It was alleged they solicited $10 from prospective league members for advice in legal matters. The league operated in Michigan and Ohio.

JUDGE ORDERS JURY TO UPHOLD WILL IN $100,000 CONTEST

Holds Brother of Late Adele Prendiville Failed to Sustain Charges.

Circuit Judge Rutledge directed a jury today to return a verdict sustaining the will of Miss Adele Prendiville, formerly of 2423 North Prairie avenue, who died Jan. 8, 1930, leaving an estate with an estimated value of $100,000. Six daughters and a son of her sister, Mrs. Mary Morley, are beneficiaries under the will.

Suit to set aside the will had been filed by a brother, Frank Prendiville, 5843 Minerva avenue, a realty operator. He alleged Miss Prendiville was not of sound mind when she made the will 10 years before her death and she was influenced by Mrs. Morley. The St. Louis Union-Trust Co. was named as executor, and its counsel, former Circuit Judge Rhodes E. Cave, defended the suit for the heirs and moved for the directed verdict at the conclusion of plaintiffs' testimony, asserting the charges had not been established.

JAPANESE HEIRESS, BROUGHT UP IN U. S. WEDS AMERICAN

Adopted Daughter of Philadelphia Man Inherited His $500,000 Estate.

By the Associated Press. HAVESFORD, Pa., June 8.—Miss Fuji Hashimoto Hale Adamson, Japanese, adopted daughter of the late William Baeder Adamson, a Philadelphia manufacturer, was married today at Elkton, Md., to Henry L. Stephens, an engineer of Philadelphia and Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward T. Minor, a retired minister. Afterward the party returned to the bride's home here.

The bride, who is 20, received Mr. Adamson's estate of almost $500,000 when he died last year. She is the daughter of a gardener and a maid employed by Mr. Adamson, a childless widower, many years ago. They left his employ when she was 4 years old and she was reared as his own daughter. Stephens is 37.

She is together with 400 exhibits pertaining to the Walker testimony. Then he must request the Mayor to reply and it is unlikely that Walker will prepare his statement in much less than two weeks. Then will come public hearings, the Democratic national convention at which Roosevelt hopes to win the presidential nomination, will be over.

O. T. REMMERS DENIES POLICE SHAKEUP RUMOR

Prospective Head of Board Says "I Don't Turn Things Upside Down."

There is no justification for reports in political circles that a shakeup among the principal officers of the Police Department is planned, Oliver T. Remmers, who is about to become president of the Police Board, said today.

Remmers added that he was not planning any material change in the police personnel. "I move slowly and don't turn things upside down," he remarked.

In the past, some Police Boards have replaced the Chief of Police, Chief of Detectives and other high officials soon after taking charge. Remmers, former Circuit Judge Harry E. Sprague and Theodore F. Lange were appointed to vacancies on the board by Gov. Caulfield yesterday. The only holdover member is N. P. Zimmer.

The new members will qualify by taking the oath at Circuit Clerk Schmitt's office tomorrow morning. Remmers sent his resignation as chairman of the Election Board to the Governor yesterday by telegraph in order to be eligible for the new appointment. The president of the Police Board customarily is the spokesman and active director of board affairs.

Referring to continued discussion of the possibility that the new board would bring about a reduction in police salaries, in order to save money for the city, Remmers repeated that the subject had not been discussed with him. He had no announcement of policy on this subject.

Frederick H. Kreismann and Daniel Bartlett resigned from the board last month because they disagreed with the Governor's view that they should co-operate with the city by cutting pay.

Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, who was president of the board, resigned to run for the Republican nomination for United States Senator.

"I am not going to turn my law office into an auxiliary Police Headquarters," Remmers said. "If people want to see me on police matters they must go to the police office. If any friend calls me 'Colonel'—(the usual title given Police Commissioners)—I'll quit speaking to him. I don't believe in synthetic 'Colonels.' Remmers added that a policeman calling him 'Colonel' was 'liable to be demoted.'"

Car Inspector, 75, Killed in Yards.

Peter Dodd, 75 years old, a car inspector, was crushed to death between freight cars yesterday in the Missouri Pacific yards at Dupont, Ill. His body was taken to Cairo today for burial. He was a widower, with six children.

CAMP FOR NUDISTS OPENED IN CATSKILLS

Olympian League Leases 400-acre Estate on Hudson River.

By the Associated Press. CAMP OLYMPIA, N. Y., June 8.—Nudists have come to the foothills of the Catskills where Rip Van Winkle in story took his peaceful 20-year siesta.

Here, on a 400-acre estate nine miles west of the Hudson River at Highland, N. Y., 77 miles from the Fifth avenue of fashionable clothing, men and women and children are sun-bathing, swimming, fishing and playing. The camp, operated by the Olympian League, which has heretofore confined its activities to the dissemination of nudist propaganda, was opened a few weeks ago. It has been designed to accommodate 400 persons.

The chief playground for the nudists is a large lake which occupies the major portion of the estate is secluded and the nudists fear no trouble with the law, since outsiders would be forced to trespass to enter the estate.

While the league makes no secret of the camp, neighbors, mostly farmers, have not learned of its character. The owner of the property, who has leased it on a co-operative basis, is not himself a nudist.

For the most part the guests have been professional people. During the past two weeks they included several lawyers from New York, an office manager from Albany, several writers, an accountant, a retired Baptist minister and a writer, the other a well-known artist, are remodeling a barn into a studio in which they plan to spend the summer.

The estate, once a model farm developed by a wealthy man as a hobby, has many buildings, the best of which is a $10,000 lodge built on a cove in the lake and surrounded by willows and oaks. Across the lake there is a densely wooded section, out of which there is being cleared a space for tennis courts and playground.

There will be opened soon a modern nursery school for children from 18 months up.

The camp is not patterned after the famed "Nacktkultur" centers of Germany and there are few rules about clothing. It can be worn or taken off according to bodily comfort. Guests must be dressed for meals, or any point where they can be seen from public thoroughfares.

DROPPING OF SQUAD ORDERS PROPOSED IN ARMY DRILL

Suggested Changes in Marching System Tried by Reserve Officers Here.

The army's proposed new drill system was tried for the first time in St. Louis Monday night. "Squads right" and "squads left" were not used during the two hours a platoon of 407th Infantry Reserve officers, all shouldering rifles, marched in the 138th Infantry Armory, 220 South Grand boulevard.

The simplified drill still recognizes the squad as the basic unit, but instead of two ranks of four men each it is a single rank of five to 13 men. Two other squads behind it make a section. Instead of giving "squad right" the commander orders "right face, forward march," and the section steps off in a column of threes in place of the old fours.

"Stand at ease" has been abolished, but the same position is assumed for "parade rest" instead of the old status quo pose. "Backward march" and "to the rear, march" have been dropped. "About face" is done in the same manner as "right face," except for a longer turn. The corporal on the right takes the place of the guide. Interval is increased to arm's length in marching with the command "extend, march."

PROPERTY OWNERS ATTACK CLAIM TO $2,000,000 ESTATE

Grandnephew Says He Never Heard Reuben Musick Speak of Adopting Mrs. Wunsch.

Property owners whose titles are affected by the claim of Mrs. Mary Wunsch to be the adopted daughter of Reuben Musick of Florissant, who died in 1871, were put on the stand today in Circuit Judge Hall's court to show their tenure of land formerly in the Musick estate.

Musick's estate, of about 2000 acres in St. Louis County and the city, was partitioned four years after his death. The present value of the property is placed as high as $2,000,000. Mrs. Wunsch is seeking to have herself declared Musick's adopted daughter on the ground that up to a year before his death she lived with him and his wife in virtually that relationship. She is now 72 years old.

In most instances there are several links in the chain of title from persons who bought the land at the time the estate was partitioned, and the present owners, although in one instance, that of George A. Warren living on new Hall's Ferry road, the land is held by a son of the man who bought it from the estate.

The 75 persons whose property is involved have banded together to resist Mrs. Wunsch's claim and to show that due public notice was given to possible claimants at the time the land was partitioned.

Married as Miss Musick. The defense put Mrs. Wunsch's husband, Adolph Wunsch, 2104A South Eleventh street, on the stand to ask under what name she had been married 55 years ago. Although he had previously said in depositions the name was Wagner, Wunsch testified she used the name of Musick. He explained the apparent discrepancy by saying she gave the name of Wagner to a Justice of the Peace but explained that she was the adopted daughter of Reuben Musick.

Wagner, he said, was the name of the family with which she lived after she had been sent away from the Musick home at the time Mrs. Musick died and Musick, who operated a ferry and mill, was unable to give her a proper home.

Never Heard of Adoption. Fred W. Tyler, 81 years old, of Charleston, Mo., testified he lived on a farm adjoining the Musick place and was well acquainted with the nieces and nephews and orphan children always at the home. He said he had never known of an adopted daughter nor was "little Mary Musick" among the children he took to school and church.

Joseph Desloge, owner of a large estate on what was formerly part of Musick's land, quoted one of the plaintiff's witnesses, Mrs. Anna Carter of Alton, as saying the Musicks had raised 17 children, not their own but had adopted none. A photograph of Musick's tombstone, in a cemetery at Florissant, was presented in evidence but was ruled to be immaterial. The inscription describes Musick as "father to the fatherless and husband to the widow."

Simon Fry, a grandnephew of Musick living in St. Louis County, testified he was 14 years old at the time Musick died and although he had often visited the home, he had never heard Mr. and Mrs. Musick speak of an adopted child. Henry Schuler, another St. Louis County resident, said Musick was his father's landlord and had a reputation for caring for poor children of the community. Schuler said he had not heard of an adopted daughter of the Musicks.

Other witnesses, one of whom was Fry's wife, have testified that a child known as "little Mary Musick" did live in the home and have identified Mrs. Wunsch as "little Mary" by a scar above her right eye caused when a well-chain struck her in the face.

Depositions of two witnesses now dead who told of "little Mary Musick" and the scar above her eye were presented to Circuit Judge Hall to be read as evidence. They are those of Charles Broughton of St. Louis County, who said he was a playmate of the child, and Mrs. Esther Long, former Negro servant of the Musicks.

Robert Patterson, Negro truck gardener of Florissant, testified he was picking apples in the Musick orchard when "little Mary" was injured and in his haste to go for help knocked the ladder away from the tree and fell to the ground. He identified Mrs. Wunsch as "little Mary."

TWO CAPTURED BY GROCER AFTER BREAKING INTO STORE

Youths Admit Entering Place of Carl Bochen to Loot

Carl Bochen, a grocer living above his store at 2962 Lee avenue, was awakened early today by the crash of glass in a rear door of the store. He hurried downstairs with a shotgun and captured two young men who had broken in, holding them under guard until Mrs. Bochen had summoned police. The two youths, who gave addresses on Lee avenue, told police they had been out of work and were seeking to loot the cash register. They had taken nothing. The home of Eugene Curran, 527 Clara avenue, was entered last night by burglars who stole jewelry valued at $1245.

LORD BRENTFORD DIES AT 67; SERVED IN BALDWIN CABINET

Former Sir William Joynson-Hicks Instituted Prison Reforms While British Home Secretary.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, June 8.—Lord Brentford, the former Sir William Joynson-Hicks, who was Home Secretary in the Baldwin Cabinet of 1924-29, died today at his home here. He was 67 years old. His illness began during a trip to the West Indies last March and grew steadily worse.

During a long career in British politics he took an active part in contemporary affairs and while he was Home Secretary instituted many prison reforms. He was a great churchman and a life-long abstainer. He became the first Lord Brentford in 1929, taking two steps in the peerage at one time. He was probably best known in England as the administrator of D. O. R. A. (Defense of the Realm Act) and for having ordered the raid on the London office of the Russian trade delegation which resulted in the severance of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the Soviet Government.

Escaped Convict Caught. By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—Two convicts who escaped from a prison dairy farm east of here were captured at Linn yesterday. They are Albert Davis of Morgan County and Matt Hilton of Douglas County.

MY LIFE is worth $2.89 how about yours?

Floyd Gibbons

It leaps toward you—you hear the hot grinding of steel wheels—a bell frantically jangles. Tragic picture! Answer this question—would your tires grip the road—stop you in time?

HELLO EVERYBODY—
Floyd Gibbons speaking. I always took one particular pride in the old U. S. A. and it was based on the fond belief that Americans have the highest standard of living of any people in the world and also, we place the highest value on human life.

What a jolt that belief has just received! Could you imagine that human life is cheaper in the U. S. A. than in war-ridden China? Neither could I until the figures proved it to me.

Yes, sir, we killed more people right here in God's Country, in the same length of time, than were killed at Shanghai.

We wounded ten times as many.

We weren't fighting a war. No, sir. Our killing and wounding was done in automobile accidents.

Frightful!

I stopped at the Goodrich plant in Akron on my way home from Shanghai. They told me about a survey just made. It showed 57% of the cars in typical cities were operating on unsafe tires. Tires that invite disaster.

Where inches mean safety!

I began to understand why so many are killed and injured. Tires carry the weight of the car. They transmit the power. They do the braking. They do the steering. Fifty miles an hour on a few square inches of rubber—the sole link between you and the world—between you and safety!

I found out more at Akron. I found out that Goodrich has done to make this "safety link" safer.

Three years they've been at it. Developing a new tire. Testing formulas. Testing processes. Testing designs.

Now it's ready. They call it the SAFETY Silvertown. They say it's the safest tire ever built. They convinced me.

I saw them drop a heavy metal prong—like a guillotine—on this tire. They had to drop it 75 feet before it penetrated.

The Torture Chamber!

I stood in a room where the temperature was 120 degrees—the torture chamber—and saw machines strike these tires with steel cleats—hundreds of times a minute. They were duplicating driving conditions on the desert—proving these tires won't burst when super-hot.

We went to a deserted stretch of road. Asphalt. Wet. There was a wedge-shaped corner. Sharper than a right-angle turn. One of their test drivers brought a car down to that turn at 42 miles an hour. Then took it—without brakes. We saw puffs of steam come out from under those Safety Silvertowns as they clutched that glazed, wet pavement. They literally burned the water off the street, leaving a clear, dry track behind them.

THEY DIDN'T SKID AN INCH!

With thousands injured in skidding accidents every year, this is more than news—it's a SENSATION.

Then came the biggest surprise. I asked who could afford to buy Safety Silvertowns.

"They don't cost one cent more than any standard tire," I was told. "For instance, the price is $7.05 for the Ford and Chevrolet size. Of course, tires can be bought even cheaper than that. Others make them—Goodrich makes them, too—for as little as $4.16. But they are NOT Safety Silvertowns."

I'll save my neck!

Let's figure it out—the difference between $7.05 and $4.16 is $2.89.

"Saving" $2.89 on a tire—that's what a lot of people are doing now.

And the toll of dead and injured mounts year after year!

No, thank you! With driving speeds what they are—with traffic what it is—with a few square inches of rubber the sole link with safety—I'll save $2.89 some other way!

Not on tires!

I'm for this League, too!

Here's something: The Silvertown Safety League. It gives me driving rules to follow—for safety. It gives me an emblem for my car. I joined up! Any Goodrich dealer will enroll you, they tell me. No cost.

RETAIL GROCERS FAVOR REPEAL OF 18TH AMENDMENT

Resolution Adopted at U. S.
Convention Here Despite Protest of Minority From Small Towns.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment was advocated today in a resolution adopted by the National Association of Retail Grocers over the protest of a minority of delegates, most of them from small towns. The association will close its convention at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow.

Repeal is necessary for "cleaning the body politic of the country and for its general social contentment," the resolution stated.
The resolution expressed the opinion that "proper control and moral and physical education must replace forcible prohibition if our people are to be encouraged in the exercise of temperance, abstinence and self-reliance."

Relief Resolution.
Another resolution states that the relief situation in many communities has "reached a critical stage" and urges that all grocers place a barrel in their stores with a placard inviting customers to purchase food and put it in the barrel for free distribution to the needy.

Other resolutions oppose the levy of a tax on oleomargarine; on changing the pharmacy law to exclude grocers from selling household remedies; and urge further amendment and revision of the Federal bankruptcy laws to establish a minimum liability for voluntary bankruptcy and exempting necessaries of life in discharge of bankruptcy.

Underconsumption of American goods is held as a contributory cause of the depression in a resolution urging merchants and consumers to give preference to goods made in this country.

Another resolution suggests that the "Government and other agencies should confine their activities to matters for which there is a general need and that the trade association should be encouraged to become the service agency for its industry."

Sessions, which are executive today, deal with problems affecting the future of independent grocers of the nation.

A resolution was adopted at the opening of the meeting furthering more effective organization of independent merchants and promoting co-operative distribution. It was passed after an address by C.
H. Janssen, secretary-manager of the association, who outlined the situation in the food distribution field.

Explains Competition.
"Food and grocery distribution has progressed beyond a state of purely individual competition and basically we are in a period of competition between types of distributive organizations, principally between the corporate chain type and the individual type," Janssen said.

"Group operation of individuals is as yet the only effective answer to the challenge of corporate chain operation."

Janssen said retailer co-operation must be predicated on the preservation of independent ownership. Such a situation, he pointed out, makes the "entire field of independent retail distribution debtor to retailer co-operative enterprise and its recognition by this association is proper as it is our present purpose to bring about between them a mutual understanding and support."

"Above our own personal and group interest," Janssen concluded,
"is the interest of the entire industry, whose destiny is in the hands of all. It is for us to dedicate ourselves to the task of holding independent distribution undivided in its program toward full and complete employment by the American people."

Committee Appointed.
The resolution authorized the appointment of a committee to study various trade and merchandising groups and formulate plans to strengthen the co-operative distribution system.

The annual dinner of the association will be held tonight, with Janssen and H. C. Petersen, East Chicago, Ind., acting president of the association during the illness of its president, J. Walter Tyler, Sacramento, Cal., delivering the principal addresses.

A luncheon and bridge party at Grant's Farm was tendered women of the convention today by Anheuser-Busch. Delegates and their families attended the Municipal Opera last night.

VOTES MUNICIPAL POWER PLANT

By the Associated Press.
CROWN POINT, Ind., June 8.—The citizens of Crown Point voted in a special election yesterday to establish a municipal power plant, the result of failure to reach an agreement with the Northern Indiana Public Service Co. on rates. The proposed plant will provide electric current to operate municipal waterworks and for lighting of streets and city buildings. Mayor Vincent Youkey had urged establishment of the plant.

Happy Wife Keeps Youth Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownstone. Over 30 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess or gamble. Get a bottle of Brownstone today—only 50¢. Then cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownstone does not prove it will actually give your dull, streaked, gray or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen—your money back.

HOW LAW STANDS NOW ON CAPITAL GAINS AND LOSSES

New Tax Enactment Contains Drastic Changes as to Stock Losses Deducted From Income.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
201-205 Kellogg Building.
WASHINGTON, June 8.—The tax bill signed by the President Monday contains drastic changes from the old law regarding stock market losses a taxpayer can deduct in his income tax return. Under the new law, losses on stocks and bonds held two years or less can be used only to offset gains. If there have been no gains during the taxable year on such transactions, losses cannot be deducted.

There was no change in the old law regarding gains and losses on capital assets held more than two years. Both the House and the Senate sought to eliminate the provisions in the old law which permitted taxpayers to avoid tax on 1930 and 1931 incomes by taking stock losses. The Finance Committee's report to the Senate, commenting on this avoidance, said:

"Many taxpayers have been completely or partially eliminating from tax their income from salaries, dividends, rents, etc., by deducting therefrom losses sustained in the stock and bond markets, with serious effect upon the revenue. It is apparent that a number of these losses are taken for the sole purpose of tax avoidance."

If Held Less Than Two Years.
Both Houses agreed that losses on stocks and bonds held less than two years should not be deductible from other income. Under the old law a taxpayer with a salary of $10,000 a year who sustained a stock market loss of $10,000 would pay no income tax because he was permitted to deduct the speculative loss from his regular income. This is not possible under the new law.

The House proposed that, in speculative transactions, the losses during the year should be deductible only from gains during the year. Thus, if a taxpayer had a speculative loss of $10,000 and a gain of $5,000, he would be permitted to deduct as loss only an amount equal to his gain, namely $5,000.

The Senate Finance Committee apparently thought this was too drastic and proposed that excess losses might be carried over into the next year, provided the amount carried over did not exceed the taxpayer's net income for that year. The House proposal, as amended, prevailed.

The tax on speculative gains is to be computed at the regular income and surtax rates. The 12½ per cent tax on gains on capital assets held more than two years does not apply to gains or losses on securities held less than two years.

Gains, Losses on Capital Assets.
The House proposed that the gains and losses on capital assets held more than two years should be calculated in the same manner as the gains and losses on assets held less than two years, but retained the tax and the tax deduction at 12½ per cent. The Senate Finance Committee thought this might work a hardship on persons forced to liquidate property without making any sort of gain. In such an instance the taxpayer would get no deduction from his loss.

In recommending the retention of the old law regarding the tax on and deductions resulting from the capital gains and losses provision, the Finance Committee said that "the losses are already subject to considerable limitation for tax purposes, inasmuch as, in the case of an individual, the reduction in tax cannot exceed 12½ per cent of such loss." Committee members also pointed out that under the present law an individual would pay as high as 63 cents on the dollar on income over $1,000,000.

"The fact that the 12½ per cent limitation applies," said the committee report, "may reduce the advantage of a given loss for tax purposes by more than 75 per cent. Further limitation appears unnecessary because of the fact that these transactions are usually non-speculative in character."

TALKING THROUGH CAT'S SKULL

Doctors' Whispers Into Ear Carried By Nerve to Amplifier.
By the Associated Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 8.—An impulse transmitted by nerves in the body was described here yesterday before members of the American Neurological Association. Drs. S. J. Crowe and Walter Hughson of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, described how they bored a hole in the skull of a cat and inserted an electrode in the auditory nerve to pick up impulses originated by sound before the message of the sound reached the brain. They then whispered "Hello" into the ear of the unconscious cat, they said, and the intercepting electrode, picking up the impulse from the nerve, carried it to an amplifier and the sound "Hello" was accurately reproduced.

PLEA TO TRANSFER CALDWELL FOR LOUISVILLE TRIAL DENIED

U. S. Judge at Nashville Orders Discharge in National Bank of Kentucky Case.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 8.—Federal Judge John J. Bore today denied an application for removal of Rogers Caldwell, Nashville financier, to the Federal Court at Louisville, to stand trial on charges growing out of the failure of the National Bank of Kentucky. The Government gave notice of an appeal.

Judge Bore said the Government had failed to show probable cause of guilt and ordered the defendant discharged. The indictment, which named James B. Brown and Charles F. Jones, officers of the National Bank of Kentucky, along with Caldwell, alleged conspiracy to violate the national banking laws and actual violation as the result of loans made to the financial house of Caldwell & Co. and subsidiaries. The Government charged the loans were not secured properly and that they resulted from an agreement.

TEACHER ABOUT TO LOSE JOB ADMITS TURNING EXTORTIONIST

Wisconsin Woman, 21, Says She Wrote Letter Demanding $5000 of a Family Physician.

PLATTSVILLE, Wis., June 8.—Eunice Krause, school teacher, 21 years old yesterday confessed, authorities said, to an attempt to extort $5000 from Dr. Wilson Cunningham. She said she wrote Dr. Cunningham demanding the money and threatening death unless it were forthcoming because she was about to lose her position and had no prospects for a job next fall. Miss Krause waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the Circuit Court but was freed on her own recognizance. Dr. Cunningham had been the family physician.

PLEA TO DISCLAIM DOG INVOLVED IN ESTATE CONTESTS

A plea for permission to disclaim further ownership and interest in a female black and tan dog was filed in Probate Court yesterday by Public Administrator Schuler.

The dog, according to a claim pending in the court, was the property of Miss Julia Roganska, who died in March, 1931, two months after placing it in the care of Mrs. Rose K. Maloney, 2423 North Union boulevard. Miss Roganska, the claim states, agreed to pay $4 a week for the dog's care. The claim is for $233.

Whether it is just and should be paid has not been decided by the court, inasmuch as a will contest has been filed by Mrs. Cecelia Rehl, a sister of Miss Roganska. But in case the charge is just, the dog is consuming the assets of the $18,000 estate. Schuler asked permission to give the black and tan to the Humane Society or to any individual who might indicate a desire for her.

PAIR ADMIT KILLING CHILD Planned to End Own Lives After Elopement, They Say.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 8.—A story of an illicit love affair was written in police records today with the arrest on a murder charge, of Mrs. Ayako Kanda, 31 years old, wife of a wealthy Japanese, and the man with whom she eloped, Koji Hatamoto, 36.

The pair was charged with the murder of the woman's 4-year-old daughter, Molly Kanda. They confessed, police said, and led them to the grave of the child. Police said the pair explained the child died from inhaling gas by which it was planned all three would die. They said the gas only sickened them.

"No one need fear Birthdays"

says
Betty Compson

"I'M OVER 30," says Betty Compson, popular screen star,
"and I don't mind admitting it in the least. No woman need fear added years—if she knows how to take care of her appearance!"

"Actresses of the stage and screen know a young-looking skin is absolutely necessary. For years I have used Lux Toilet Soap, and find it certainly does wonders for the complexion."

The secret Betty Compson tells is shared by countless other lovely actresses.

Of the 694 important Hollywood actresses, including all stars, 686 use fragrant Lux Toilet Soap regularly.
It is so utterly white!

Surely you will want to try it—at just 10¢ a cake!

NEVADA TRYING TO TAX HOOVER DAM BUILDERS

Company Claims Exemption Under Reported Pledge of Secretary Wilbur.

By the Associated Press.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., June 8.—The State of Nevada moved today to force a showdown on its right to collect taxes from the Hoover Dam builders, but Gov. Fred B. Balzar said he was not impressed with a suggestion favoring physical force.

Clark County and the State are arrayed against the Federal Government and the six companies, builders of the great Colorado River project.

Harley A. Harmon, District Attorney of Clark County, after hearing a reported statement of Secretary of the Interior Wilbur that the project would be tax free, charged that Wilbur had laid himself open to impeachment proceedings.

Turning to the problem of collecting taxes, which Harmon said should total more than $150,000, the prosecutor declared he would favor calling out the State militia if necessary. Gov. Balzar said an investigation was necessary of "this really serious situation," but he was not "impressed" by the suggestion that physical force be employed.

The situation was brought to a climax by a statement which E. G.
McGriff, chairman of the County Commissioners, and F. C. Deviney, County Assessor, said had been made by W. A. Bechtel, president of the six companies. The quoted statement said:

"Before we took this contract,
we had a definite understanding with Secretary Wilbur and the Government that this would be a withdrawn area and free from taxation.
It was with this understanding that we bid on the contract."

Harmon based his suggestion of impeachment on Bechtel's reported statement and added that if it were true it represented a conspiracy because "the amount of taxes alone would enable one bidder to go considerably under those figures on paying."

The District Attorney's remarks were followed by a resolution in which the County Commissioners called on Gov. Balzar to institute an investigation to "ascertain by what authority the Secretary of the Interior had to pledge this State or the County of Clark that any corporation or individual should be exempt from taxes."

Balzar said a conference was planned at Carson City on June 23 to consider what action the State might take.

Previously, the State and county threatened to seize property in lieu of taxes, but the six companies obtained a Federal injunction.

Harmon contended that despite withdrawal of the reservation area from the State of Nevada and creation of a Government controlled district, State and national laws give the State the area between the low and high water mark of the Colorado River. In this particular section, much of the six companies property is located.

KILLING AT KENTUCKY MINE

Deputy Sheriff Shot When Workers Are Fired On.

By the Associated Press.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., June 8.— Deputy Sheriff Wallace Myers was shot to death late yesterday when coal miners for whom he was guard were fired on with machine guns and rifles from a wooded hill overlooking Empire Mine No. 6, about 15 miles from here. The bullets scattered the miners as they emerged from a pit.

Former employees of Empire Mine No. 6 have been on a strike for some time. Twenty-four of them are under bond for grand jury action in connection with disorders. Early last month miners imported by the operators were threatened and since then guards have been provided by the county.
There have been several dynamitings in the fields since the strike started.

JAILED FOR BEATING SON, 9

Michigan Farmer Admits Torturing
All of Five Boys.

By the Associated Press.

HART, Mich., June 8.—John Snook, Leavitt Township farmer, is in jail in default of $1000 bond on a charge of torturing and unlawfully punishing his son Charles, 9 years old. The boy had displayed in court warts on his back, surfaced, he said, when his father struck him with a club.

Snook was held to Circuit Court for trial after an examination before a Justice of the Peace. Officers said Snook admitted beating the boy and that he said he also had lashed each of his five sons to a stake in the barn or suspended them with ropes on occasions and then had beaten them with harness tugs or sticks.

TO CONFER ON CROSSINGS

Bellefonte Officials and Railway to Seek Agreement Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 8.—A conference between officials of the city of Bellefonte and the Illinois Central Railroad will be held at Bellefonte Tuesday to work out an agreement concerning South Second, South First and South High street crossings, now closed. This was agreed on yesterday at a hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The crossings were closed several cars ago by the railroad. Residents living south of High street complained that the value of their property then fell as they were forced to travel over unimproved streets to reach the business section of the city.

GAS ESSENTIAL TO LIFE IS FOUND ON VENUS

Carnegie Astronomers, Through Spectroscopy, Obtain Evidence of Carbon Dioxide.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—An indication of life on the planet Venus—discovery that carbon dioxide is "probably present in large amounts" in the planet's atmosphere—was announced today by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Carbon dioxide is essential to life as known on earth, especially plant life. Discovery of the gas on Venus is no sure indication that life exists there, the announcement said, but means that one of the conditions essential to life is present.

Evidence of carbon dioxide on Venus was obtained by Dr. Walter S. Adams and Dr. Theodore Dunham, at the Carnegie Institution's observatory at Mount Wilson, Cal.

"This discovery, if fully substantiated, is of marked scientific interest for two reasons," said the announcement. "It will be the first time a gas of any kind has been identified in the spectra of any of our planets; and it indicates that one of the essentials to life as we know it on this earth may exist in the atmosphere of Venus."

The reflected sunlight from Venus was focused by the 100-inch telescope on a slit in the spectro-scope, breaking it into its spectrum.

When the light passed through Venus' atmosphere, some of it was absorbed by the carbon dioxide. This is shown in the spectrum by a dark line or "absorption band."

BRYAN'S DAUGHTER IN COURT

Mrs. Hargreaves Presents Schedules in Bankruptcy.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 8.—A schedule showing liabilities of $132,202.92 and assets of $253,871.75 was filed in Federal Bankruptcy Court yesterday by Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan. Mrs. Hargreaves, who said she lost heavily in oil field ventures, has been in litigation over finances since Feb. 8, 1931.

In her reports Mrs. Hargreaves said she was entitled to one-third interest in 15 annuities of $100 each left by Bryan. She said these annuities were exempt from her obligations as a bankrupt. Her assets listed included real estate valued at $217,000, and only $401.75 in cash. Inability to handle the obligations was blamed on inactivity of the real estate market.

DENIES OIL STATION PERMITS

The Board of Public Service yesterday rejected 13 applications for the establishment of oil filling stations on triangular lots.

The Board of Aldermen recently passed an ordinance exempting triangular lots from the requirement that tanks must be 30 feet from the lot line. Director of Public Safety Steininger obtained an opinion from City Counselor Muehling holding that the ordinance is not valid.

BEER TAX ADVOCATED BY EX-SENATOR REED

He Favors Immediate Legalizing of Wines Also, as Revenue Producer.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 8.—
Action by Congress to legalize 3 or 3 1/2 per cent beer and wine of "limited alcoholic content" was advocated today by former Senator James A. Reed as an immediate tax raising measure.

He declared beer and wine could be brought back by Congress "acting fairly within the limits of the Constitution."

Missouri's favorite son candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination estimated that the Federal Government could thus raise from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000 by an excise tax and that State and municipal revenues could be increased correspondingly.

Reed urged prompt action and declared, in his opinion, the coming Democratic Government could thus should not agree to any plank on prohibition which involved postponing definite action on the liquor question "for three, four, or five years."

"From all I have heard," he said,
"the Republican leaders have already prepared a plank, which is either a complete straddle of the question, or which proposes the adoption of a scheme which will postpone any definite action for two or three years."

Reed said the country was confronted with a "tremendous deficit" and added the taxes now proposed
"are burdensome to the last degree" to industry and labor.

"We ought to adopt some policy of prompt relief," he continued.
"and I think that it can be done without doing violence to the eighteenth amendment. The Supreme Court has decided that Congress may define as intoxicating that which is not intoxicating in fact.
That being the decision, it follows that Congress could declare that to be non-intoxicating which is intoxicating in fact. But, neither myself, nor, so far as I know, any of those opposed to the prohibitory law would advocate any such decision."

"However, acting fairly within the limits of the Constitution, Congress could permit the use of a sufficient amount of alcohol in beers and wines, so as to make them palatable and healthful, and at the same time not intoxicating in the proper sense of the term."

"A 3 or 3 1/2 per cent beer could be permitted, and wine with a limited alcoholic content."

"The Volstead act could be amended by striking from it those atrocities, or it could be entirely repealed."

The time had arrived, he said,
for the Democratic party to "undertake to submit a plan of resubmission or repeal."

"And I hope that both political parties will see the light, as Mr.
Rockefeller has—to give the people relief from a law which has been productive of crime, and has burdened our people with a tremendous and unnecessary expense."

RAILROAD EXECUTIVES CONFER ON HOW TO MEET PROBLEMS

Economies and Methods of Overcoming Competition Discussed; Larger Gathering Later.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 8.—Several railroad executives met today to discuss problems confronting the industry. The session was attended by Hale Holden, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Southern Pacific Railroad Co.; J.
J. Kelly, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford; J.
E. Gorman, head of the Rock Island system, and R. H. Ashton, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

The discussion, Ashton said, covered the effect of the depression, methods of meeting competition with various agencies now unregulated, further economies in operation either by additional research or by co-operative action, co-ordination or by the combination of these factors.

"The conference today," said Ashton, "was for the purpose of giving consideration to the many suggestions received from widely spread sources. The situation necessarily will have to be discussed at a general meeting of railroads at a date to be later determined."

Stockholder F. Action Against Central West Public Service
Co. of Omaha.

By the Associated Press.
WILMINGTON, Del., June 8.—
Appointment of receivers for the Central West Public Service Co. of Omaha, Neb., was asked in a bill of complaint filed today in Chancery Court by Guy G. Fox of Chil-cago. Fox owns preferred stock and a $2000 gold bond of the company. The concern was incorporated in Delaware June 28, 1926, and has funded debts outstanding of $12,680,000, of which $1,000,000 in three-year 7 per cent notes is due Aug. 1.

The company owns and operates public utility properties in Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota and Texas, and stocks of other corporations engaged in public utility business in Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Virginia and West Virginia.

The company, the bill states, owns all the funded debt and capital stock of Central West Public Service Co. of Nebraska, Central West Public Service Co. of North Dakota, Southeast Public Service Corporation of Virginia, Southeast Public Service Co. of West Virginia and all the stock of the Iowa-Illinois Telephone Co.

The bill alleges the company is insolvent because it is unable to meet current and maturing obligations. Interest due May 1 on its first lien collateral gold bonds and 10-year convertible debentures remains unpaid, it was alleged.

10 PERSONS BOUND AND GAGGED IN $50,000 JEWELRY HOLDUP

Three Men Enter Third Floor Offices of Firm in Downtown New York.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 8.—Three robbers invaded the third floor offices of the Bristol Seamless Ring Co. in downtown Manhattan yesterday, police were told, and escaped with jewelry valued at between $50,000 and $100,000. Ten employees were bound and gagged.

The loot consisted almost entirely of diamond rings. Most of it was taken from a large safe. After the robbery, an employee wriggled to a telephone and knocked the receiver off the hook.

The proprietor, Max Kronstadt, said the loss was covered by insurance.

The elevator operator told police he had not seen anyone answering the robbers' description enter or leave the building.

CHICAGO, June 8.—Philip Vine, 18 years old, was shot three times and critically wounded when he attempted to rob Policeman William Campbell last night. Campbell, dressed in plain clothes, was sitting in his automobile when the youth ordered him to move away from the steering wheel. MURDER VICTIM; ALLEGED KILLER

EMIL KIRSCH.

CHARLES L. WINCHESTER.

WARRANTS FOR TWO HELD FOR KILLING IN HOLDUP

Warrants charging murder were issued by Police Magistrate Colgan of East St. Louis today against Charles Littleton Winchester and Melvin Watson, in connection with the murder of Emil Kirsch, a barber, during an attempted holdup Monday morning.

The warrants, which were issued solely to prevent the men obtaining release from jail on writs of habeas corpus, will automatically become void after the Kirsch inquest Friday afternoon, and the prisoners will then be turned over to Sheriff Munn of St. Clair County.

Police believe Kirsch was shot because he had recognized Winchester, whom they accuse of attempting to hold up a drug store at 1435 East Broadway, East St. Louis, where Kirsch had stopped to buy a newspaper. Watson has confessed being the lookout and has named Winchester as the killer. Winchester, a paroled convict, has been identified by the druggist and by another witness who was present at the time of the attempted robbery.

EXPRESS TRAIN HITS FREIGHT, 48 INJURED

Locomotive and Three Cars Go Over Embankment Near Deans, N. J.

By the Associated Press.
DEANS, N. J., June 8.—About 48 persons were injured last night when a fast Atlantic City-New York express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad crashed into a derailed freight train near here. Twenty-eight persons were taken to hospitals; about 20 others were bruised.

Only two of the injured were in a serious condition today. Frank Schock, engineer of the express train, and Harry McCulley, his fireman, were in a critical state. Both live in Atlantic City.

When his locomotive and three cars plunged over an embankment, Schock was hurt into a brook.

Today the four track trunk line of the Pennsylvania Railroad was still blocked. New York-Philadelphia trains were rerouted.

Many of the injured men, women and children were treated at hospitals in New Brunswick, Princeton, Trenton and Rahway. Others were carried by special train to New York for treatment.

The express train had six cars. The rear three were dragged to the edge of the embankment when the rest of the train plunged over.

Preliminary investigation indicated the freight had been derailed by the opening of a chute in a coal gondola. Coal flowing to the tracks caused 12 freight cars to leave the rails. The locomotive of the express train plunged into the brook after caroming off the coal gondola.

None of the passenger cars overturned. The baggage car and two coaches which followed the engine down the embankment tilted at a sharp angle and snapped off several electrification poles.

MORE THAN $1,500,000 LEFT BY E. F. SWIFT FOR CHARITY
Estate of Packer Who Plunged to Death From Apartment Valued at $5,000,000.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 8.—Edward F. Swift, member of the meat-packing family who plunged to his death 10 days ago from his Gold Coast apartment, left an estate valued at $5,000,000. The will, filed for probate yesterday, left one-third of the estate to the widow, Mrs. Hortense Swift; one-third in trust for the three children, Anna, May Swift, Henry T. Philip and Edward F. Jr., and a third to charity and minor legatees. The bulk of the charitable bequests were for the building and endowment of two hospitals.

Other bequests were: Superannuated ministers of the M. E. Church, $25,000, and the same sum each to the Art Institute, Northwestern University and the University of Chicago. The two minor bequests amounted to $9000.

Mrs. Swift's share was left to her outright. The Farmers Loan and Trust Co. of New York City will serve as trustee.

HERRIOT IS GIVEN VOTE OF CONFIDENCE 390-152

Premier's Support in French Chamber Runs From Left Over to Right Center.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 8.—Premier Herriot, having declared his policies, was given a smashing vote of confidence last night in the Chamber of Deputies. The vote was 390 to 152.

Herriot appealed for support, declaring his administration was founded on a basis of close international collaboration in the fields of economics and politics. He pledged his Government to put into effect immediate economies in the war budget.

The vote of support came from the Left and well over to the Center Right, including several members of the former Government of Andre Tardieu.

Herriot declared he and his Cabinet would take a determined stand at Lausanne against violation of treaties and contracts, but he left the way open for negotiations on reparations payments from Germany. "The Government is ready," he said, "to discuss and protect or take any initiative likely to provoke, by reciprocity, greater world stability or peaceful reconciliations."

Louis Germaine-Martin, Minister of Finance, said today that France was confronted with a serious financial situation and that probably the 1932 budget deficit will be between six and seven billion francs ($240,000,000-$280,000,000).

He called attention to the probability that Germany will not resume reparations payments when the Hoover moratorium expires, and said that the French Government intended to introduce a measure for major reduction of expenditures and reorganization of administrative services.

TEMPORARY RECEIVER SOUGHT FOR RUSSELL PACKING CO.

Stockholder Alleges Two Officers Are Conducting Business at a Loss.

Suit for a temporary receiver for the Russell Packing Co., 1550 South Second street, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Joseph P. Palermo, a stockholder. He also asks for removal of Henry Schreff as president of the corporation and Richard C. Pechmann as secretary-treasurer, alleging they are conducting the business at a loss.

Palermo is the owner of five shares of common stock, according to Paul Dillon, his attorney. The company has an authorized capital of $200,000.

In his petition Palermo alleges that Schreff and Pechmann have sent notices to stockholders of an option giving them the right to exchange their stock for a new issue, providing for 10 per cent cumulative preferred stock. He avers the company cannot pay a 10 per cent dividend, and as a matter of fact is earning no dividends, having lost during the past three years more than $25,000. Another complaint is that stockholders have not been permitted for the past four years to have any voice in the conduct of the business.

Pechmann said that so far as he knew there was no basis for the suit, as the company's business was satisfactory.

GEORGE W. HOBBS, FORMER BANKER, DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Was Cashier and Vice-President of Republic National and State Examiner.

George W. Hobbs, a State bank examiner for 10 years and former vice-president and cashier of Republic National Bank, died at Missouri Baptist Hospital today of heart disease following an attack of influenza two months ago. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Hobbs was born at Independence, Mo., and educated in Westminster College at Fulton. He entered the banking business as a clerk in Kansas City, but removed to St. Louis about 30 years ago. He was with the Republic National for several years after his resignation as bank examiner in 1922, and for a time was a director of the Citizens Loan & Savings Co., resigning about a year before it went into involuntary bankruptcy last November. He was a Democratic candidate for City License Collector in 1930.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Betty Hobbs of the Ellsworth Apartments, 4405 West Pine boulevard.

EDISON PROTEGE MAKING GOOD

W. B. Huston, Leader at Massachusetts Tech.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 8.—Wilbur B. Huston of Seattle, Wash., a winner of one of the late Thomas A. Edison's "Bright Boy" contests, has completed his third year at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and thus far has fulfilled the hopes the inventor had for him.

Huston, winner of the first Edison scholarship, has for three years had a place on the annual list of students of high scholastic standing. This year he was elected general manager of the Tech Engineering News, the student journal of engineering and scientific progress, and he also has held a high place in the council of the student government.

Arthur O. Williams of Providence, R. I., another Edison protege, has completed his second year at the institution and he, too, has maintained a high scholastic standing with a ranking on the honor roll of his class.

'PRETTY BOY' FLOYD ESCAPES AGAIN AFTER FIGHTING POSSE

Oklahoma Officers Exchange Shots With Two Desperadoes They Found in House.

By the Associated Press.

ADA, Ok., June 8.—Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious Oklahoma outlaw, and George Birdwell, his aide, apparently had eluded another posse today.

A dozen officers who went to a house near Stonewall last night on word that Floyd and Birdwell were there, said two men who escaped under fire were the long-sought bank robbers and slayers. None of the posse was wounded.

Several of the posse expressed the belief the two desperadoes were protected by steel vests and other armor. The posse was led by Sheriff Franklin and O. P. Ray, of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation.

Eastle Henson, 18-year-old Ada youth kidnapped by Floyd and Birdwell April 21 when they robbed the Stonewall Bank, saw the fight from a slight elevation. He said: "Birdwell, carrying a machine gun, led the way, firing as he ran for the car. Floyd followed with a revolver in each hand. Officers continued to blaze away at them, but the bullets apparently failed to reach their mark."

212 CANDIDATES IN THE PRIMARIES IN COUNTY AUG. 2

Doubt Whether 17 Who Filed Late for Probate Judge After Hodgdon's Death Will Be on Ticket.

Ballots in the primary election to be held in St. Louis County Aug. 2 will bear the names of 212 candidates if the Attorney-General decides to place on the ballots the names of 17 candidates who filed for Probate Judge Friday after the death of Judge Sam D. Hodgdon. The election commissioners have referred the matter to the Attorney-General. There is question as to whether the successor to Judge Hodgdon is to be elected or appointed by the Governor, and whether additional nominations may be received because his death occurred on the last day specified for filing.

The contest for Assessor promises to be the most interesting politically with four Republicans, including the incumbent, George Herpel, in the field. Martin L. Neaf, Clayton, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination. Herpel's opponents are Sheriff Lill, H. A. Bopp, Ellenville, and former Sheriff Al Wilmas, Chesterfield.

Johnson, Webster Groves; Michael F. J. Mohan, Overland, and Allen L. Young, Creve Coeur.

Fifteen Republicans and two Democrats filed for the unexpired term of Judge Hodgdon, which runs for two years. The Democrats are A. Evans Hughes, Overland, and Raleigh McCormick, Webster Groves. The Republicans are John E. Eggers, Clayton; Willard H. Guest, Kirkwood; Richard J. Howard, Maplewood; Fredland L. Jackson, Overland; C. William Koenig, Webster Groves; Leslie T. Lewis, Richmond Heights; John J. McAtee, Clayton; Don O. Russell, Webster Groves; Joseph C. Schroeder, Clayton; R. J. Schroeder, Riverview; G. G. Sene, Walter F. Stahlhuth, Maplewood; Robert A. Thomann, Clayton; Henry G. Trieseler, Richmond Heights; John A. Witthus, Clayton, and Christian C. Wolff, Clayton.

In the Second District Herman Barken, seeking re-election on the Republican ticket, has seven opponents. Chilton Bates, University City, is unopposed on the Democratic ticket. Barken's opponents are Joseph A. Falson, Clayton; Albert Kretschmer Jr., Shrewsbury; Wakefield McNeas, Maplewood; Emil J. Morse, University City; Jacob Sluskey, University City; Irving L. Spencer, Webster Groves, and Roscoe Spencer, Maplewood. In the Third District three Republicans seek to succeed George Heege, who is a candidate for State Senator, and William M. Daly Jr., Kirkwood, is unopposed on the Democratic ticket. The Republicans are George William Booth, Valley Park; Hartwell G. Crain, Webster Groves, and Charles F. Rott, Sappington.

Shaughnessy, Richmond Heights; George H. Skidman, Richmond Heights, and Richard S. Smiley, Overland.

Peter C. Bopp, Judge of the County Court, Second District, is opposed for re-election by Emil F. Wohlachlaeger, Kirkwood. The Democratic candidates are Clarence J. Dennis, Valley Park; Alfred T. Radforth, Eureka, and R. E. Schumacher, Luxembourg.

Women said — You can't have snowy white clothes without hard rubbing

BUT they hadn't tried the New Oxydol then

YOU'VE probably done it too—spent long hours over the washboard because you liked your clothes fresh and white. But there's an easier way now!

Try the New Oxydol, the soap that makes 50% more suds—creamer, quicker, longer lasting suds.

Those extra, richer suds are the secret of easy washing, of cleaner, whiter clothes. Suds that don't collapse and let the dirt fall back on the clothes—clean smelling suds that never ball up or leave a scum on the tub—suds that make clothes gleaming white without tiresome rubbing.

The New Oxydol's as easy on hands as it is on dainty things—and it makes rich suds in either hard water or soft water turned hard by dirty clothes or dishes. Ask your grocer today for a package—see how much it lightens all your housework.

STATE AUDITOR EXPLAINS WHY HE INCREASED BONUS TAX

Tells Commerce Group Only Small Balance Will Be in Fund at End of Year.

State Auditor L. D. Thompson has sent to the Chamber of Commerce, in reply to an inquiry, an explanation of the 2-cent increase he ordered recently in the State's tax rate for retirement of soldier bonus bonds. This action followed the general reduction of real estate assessments by the State Board of Equalization.

It will require $2,110,412.50 to pay principal and interest on the bonds this year, Thompson wrote. The assessed valuation of property in the State on which taxes will be paid is about $4,300,000,000, Thompson pointed out. The bonus bonds tax rate fixed for this year, 6 cents on the $100 valuation, will yield about $2,193,000, after allowing for the possibility of a 15 per cent delinquency in payments, Thompson declared. Thus there would be only $131,412.50 in the fund at the end of the year, and the increase in the rate was mandatory, the Auditor insisted.

Last year the tax rate for the bonds was 4 cents. Thompson, under the law, ordered the increase of 2 cents. The total State tax rate this year is 15 cents, no change having been made in other items. Forty per cent of the State's general tax revenue will go for the bonus paid Missourians participating in the World War.

Flying Richters in California.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 8.—Traveling leisurely around the world in a light sporting airplane, Mr. and Mrs. Uli Richter of Munich, Germany, landed at Burbank yesterday. They are competing for the 1932 Von Hindenburg prize of 10,000 marks and a silver trophy for a flight of at least 30,000 miles without an accident. The Richters expect to remain in California for the Olympic games, starting July 31.

GIRL, 11, HAS HAD 35 BONE FRACTURES CAUSED BY STRAIN

CHICAGO, June 8.—Mary Mendag, 11-year-old girl, has suffered so many bone fractures in the 11 years of her life she has almost lost count of them and she has never been in a serious accident. Her right arm is broken now and that came from a slight strain that did not involve even a fall.

Dr. Frederick Harvey, who is studying her case at North Chicago Hospital, said X-ray pictures showed that virtually every long bone in her body had been broken once or more for a total of 35 to 40 fractures.

"Her case is unusual," he said. "Examination reveals the bone structure is so extraordinarily thin and brittle that any slight stress results in fracture. This obviously improper calcification appears to be occasioned through malnutrition of the membrane that nourishes the bone."

13 HELD IN RAID AFTER STRIKING MEN ARE BEATEN

Chief Gerk Says He Has Names of 17 Imported After General Material Co., Walkout.

Following a night raid on the Northwestern Hotel, 4919 Natural Bridge avenue, by uniformed policemen and detectives, Chief Gerk announced today that his department had the names of 17 strikebreakers, who, he said, were brought from other cities in connection with the strike of union employees of the General Material Co., 4181 Park avenue.

Thirteen men were arrested at the hotel when a search of their rooms and four rented automobiles disclosed a tear gas bomb and a dozen pick handles and baseball bats, several of which bore blood stains.

The prisoners, who gave addresses in Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Pa., or Dayton, O., described themselves as chauffeurs or salesmen. All are held for further investigation. Chief Gerk said four of the men were fugitives from other cities, where they were sought on felony charges.

Four of the group under arrest were identified by John Hovey, business agent for the concrete workers' local union, as men who beat him and his brother-in-law, Frank Semet, with pick handles at Lillian and Davison avenues, yesterday morning. The four, who denied the charge, are described by police as Jack Thompson of Pittsburgh; Charles Williams, Chicago, and Lee McDaniel and Joseph Pullman, giving their address as the Northwestern Hotel. The prisoners will be viewed today by other victims of beatings rowing out of the strike.

Defective Sergeant Edward Fierce, who led the raid, reported the four automobiles parked behind the hotel had been rented from the Hertz Driveurless Stations, Inc., by the Railway Audit and Inspection Co., with offices in the Railway Exchange Building. Police announced that Edward W. Forstle, attorney for the General Material Co., made inquiry concerning bond for the prisoners.

Union men employed by the General Material Co., which does an extensive business in ready mixed concrete, went on strike several weeks ago when the company announced that time and a half pay for overtime and double time for holiday work would be discontinued. Union chauffeurs and engineers, in authorizing a strike, assert that the company is violating its agreement with them. The General Material Co. is operating with non-union men. Other material concerns, fearing violence while strike was in progress, ceased making deliveries.

WALTER F. STAHLHUTH NAMED TO SUCCEED JUDGE HODGDON

Former Maplewood City Attorney Appointed by Gov. Caulfield to Probate Bench.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—Walter F. Stahlhuth, Republican, an attorney of Maplewood, was appointed today by Gov. Caulfield as Probate Judge of St. Louis County to succeed Probate Judge Sam D. Hodgdon, who died last Friday of injuries suffered in a fall from a horse.

The appointment will fill the general election in November, but also provides Stahlhuth shall serve until his successor is elected and qualified.

Stahlhuth, 42 years old, formerly City Attorney of Maplewood. He is one of the several Republican candidates who filed for the party nomination for election of Hodgdon's unexpired term immediately after Judge Hodgdon's death, which occurred on the last day for filing candidates in the primary. Hodgdon's term would have expired at the close of 1934. The question whether the candidates who filed for nominations for the unexpired term in the August primary can be placed on the ballot has been referred to the Attorney-General for a ruling, the Governor said. The law provides that when such vacancies occur the Governor shall make an appointment effective until the next general election. The law is not clear, it was said, as to whether candidates for party nominations for the place may run in the primary, since the formal call did not include the office of Probate Judge.

BOYS OFF 'TO CONQUER WORLD'

Author of "Abie's Irish Rose" Asks Police to Find Her Son.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 8.—Ann Nichols' 15-year-old son, Henry Jr., the mother told police today, had started out with her automobile and two revolvers to "conquer the world." Mrs. Nichols, the author of "Abie's Irish Rose," telephoned the Sheriff's office that upon return home last night she found this note on the dining-room table: "Mother dear: We are going to conquer the world. Don't be afraid. Henry."

The youth disappeared with Russell Wade "Flashback," 14 years old, whose parents are neighbors of Mrs. Nichols. The parents reported the disappearance of the boys after waiting all night, expecting the runaways would find the world at dark a cold, forbidding place and return.

This Is Exclusive of 109 Disputed in New York and Pennsylvania but Includes Other Claims.

GOVERNOR LEADS IN FLORIDA PRIMARY

Far Ahead of His Nearest Competitor There, William H. Murray of Oklahoma.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Florida and Mississippi Democrats have increased the convention vote of Franklin D. Roosevelt to 528. This includes delegates instructed, pledged and claimed. The two-thirds necessary to nominate is 770. The 528 are exclusive of 109 disputed votes in Pennsylvania and New York. Delegates will be selected in Virginia tomorrow and in Idaho Friday. The national convention begins June 27.

Roosevelt Far Ahead of Murray in Florida Primary.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 8.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York was in the lead today for nomination for the presidency by Florida Democrats as returns from the state-wide primary were reported.

The vote from 1316 of 1233 precincts gave him 37,413 to 4895 for Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma and 543 for L. J. Chassee of Milwaukee, Wis.

Mark Wilcox, repeal candidate for Congress, had a lead of 2870 votes over Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen in 183 of the Fourth District's 419 precincts. Mrs. Owens favors a referendum on prohibition.

Mayor John H. Alston Jr. of Jacksonville and W. J. Sears, a former Congressman, both favoring referendum, led in the race for Congressman-at-large.

Representative Herbert J. Drane of the First District (Congressional race). His opponents are J. Hardin Peterson and Sumner L. Lowry Sr., all favoring referendum.

In the Third District, Representative Tom A. Yen, dry, had a slight edge over R. G. Patterson and Mildred Caldwell, who favor referendum.

Two former Governors, Cary A. Hardee and John W. Martin were well to the fore in the eight-way race for the gubernatorial nomination.

Florida has 14 votes in the Democratic national convention.

Roosevelt Praised John D. Jr. for Urging Prohibition Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 8.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night praised John D. Rockefeller Jr. for urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The Rockefeller view was set forth in a letter to Dr. Nicholas M. Butler of Columbia University. Roosevelt, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and a wet, said: "I am very glad to read the statement of John D. Rockefeller Jr. It will be of great help in getting action at the next session of Congress so that in every state there can be a vote on the eighteenth amendment."

The Governor stated a position on prohibition in a letter in September, 1929, to United States Senator Wagner of New York, in which he said:

"The force and effect of the eighteenth amendment can be eliminated, of course, only by a new constitutional amendment. This would supersede and abrogate the eighteenth amendment. The fundamental of a new amendment must be the restoration of real control over intoxicants to the several states. The sale of intoxicants through state agencies should be made lawful in any state where the people of that state desire it. . . . The control of any sale of any intoxicants should be wholly in the hands of the state or state agencies."

Former Governor of Virginia Was Clear Repeal Planks.

By the Associated Press.

LEESBURG, Va., June 8.—Former Gov. Westmoreland Davis, a wetting that prohibition has proved a failure, today urged repeal of the eighteenth amendment and regulation of the liquor problem by the states.

"The attitude of the Democratic party," he said in a statement "should be clearly declared upon this issue, and its position should not be camouflaged by discussion of whether the eighteenth amendment shall remain in the Constitution."

CHILE CONSIDERS TRADING NITRATES FOR SOVIET OIL

Head of Socialist Junta Says Government Will Place Industry Under Three State Trusts.

By the Associated Press.
SANTIAGO, Chile, June 8.—A plan to trade Chilean nitrates for Soviet Russian petroleum was taken under consideration by Chile's new Socialist government today after the dwindling supply of gasoline had made it necessary to resort to rationing.

Finance Minister Alfredo Lagar-rigo is making a study on the possibilities of the nitrates-for-petroleum project. Meanwhile the provincial authorities have been ordered to do their utmost to conserve fast-disappearing gasoline stocks.

Chile's need for petroleum has long been pressing and during recent months, because of the scarcity of foreign exchange with which to buy it, increasing difficulty has been encountered in keeping a supply in hand.

The Finance Minister announced that orders had gone out to stock exchanges to reopen tomorrow.
They had been closed to prevent speculators from creating a panic.
The exchanges will operate under strict regulations.

Airplane Propaganda Missions.
The new Government made a bid for support in the provinces today by sending out airplane propaganda missions.

Planes were dispatched both to the North and South with workers and professors as passengers. Their purpose was to acquaint the people with the aims of the new administration and to obtain promises of co-operation from provincial officials.

Junta officers reiterated assurances that all efforts by oppositionists to stage a counter-revolution had failed.

Col. Marmaduke Grove, Minister of Defense, said that in the operations of the Junta "there has not been, and neither will there be, any personal ambitions."

"Justice and reconstruction will be its only objects," he asserted.
"There is no Islamism (a reference to former Dictator-President Carlos Ibanez), no militarism, no grotesque, in the new republic. We will triumph because we have faith in the destinies of our strong and virile race. We ask of the country consideration and confidence."

Workers Pledge Co-operation.
Several thousand workers gathered before the presidential palace last night and pledged their cooperation with the new Government in its plan to provide every Chilean with a job by taking over the economic machinery and taxing the rich to pay for it.

Davila predicted that within a month there would not be a single man in Chile who would not have a job.

"We will create three state companies," he said, "one for agriculture, one industrial, and one for mining. Each of these will hire the unemployed of the country.
We will impose on the fortunes of the rich and those who have big incomes sufficient taxes to bring in the money we need for this purpose."

"After all, our revolution was against these people, who comprise less than one-tenth of Chile's population, and who for years and years have ruled the country with an iron hand, never heeding the needs of the workers or the people at large.

"They have had all the money.
All the privileges, and they never paid taxes. They are going to help provide living and happiness for those people who have been trod upon."

Assurance to Foreign Capital.
The Government, he said, had not decided on its program for the nitrate industry, which is in the hands of the $375,000,000 Comac combine, controlled by capitalists of the United States.

"Foreign investors may be certain," he added, "that we will give them the problem our fullest and fastest consideration. What we will do will be for the best interests of all sides and we hope for and expect the co-operation of private interests in the Comac in the study we intend to make."

Provincial authorities were instructed by the Junta today to begin rationing gasoline, which is scarce on account of a lack of foreign exchange.

No Church Seizure.
After appointing a committee of professors and students to take charge of the National University, the Junta expressed the belief that its controversies with the students, who had threatened a general strike, were ended.

Touching on the religious question, Davila denied that church property would be taken over.

"We have no intention whatever of interfering with the church and we do not intend in any way to take over church property," he said. "Please tell the people abroad that foreign and domestic property will be respected at all times."

He said the financial policy probably would be settled soon.

"We will stabilize the peso and through a new commission we will regulate its value and its connection with foreign exchange," he explained. "We will put the peso on a definite basis that will be, in our estimation, its real and proper value. We have made no decision yet about the manner in which the currency of the State is to be issued."

Free Speech Guaranteed.
The Junta took under consideration a project to suppress horracing and gambling, but it is expected that no action will be taken immediately lest unemployment be increased and public revenues decreased.

National pawnshops are returning clothes and tools without redemption payments or interest.

The Junta issued a guarantee of the rights of assembly and freedom of speech and announced that honest critics of the administration would not be bothered. Supervision of press messages had been established merely to prevent exag-gerations, it was said.

Several thousand workers pledged their co-operation in the Government's program at a gathering in the square facing the presidential palace.

The workers issued manifestoes urging full co-operation among all classes and warning workers everywhere to be on the watch for any reactionary movement.

DR. W. W. KEEN, AMERICAN TELLS EMINENT SURGEON,
DIES AT AGE OF 95
OF BEING HELD BY CHINESE BANDITS

One of First Champions of Antiseptic Practice in U.
S., Evolutionist and Defender of Vivisection.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—Dr.
William Williams Keen, noted physician and surgeon, who served in three wars, died at his home here last night. He was 95 years old and had been ill for some time.

Dr. Keen entered the military service first in the Civil War in 1861 as assistant surgeon of the first regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers. He served in the American War and was appointed by President McKinley on a commission for a post-war investigation, but was obliged to decline.
His World War service won him decorations from France and Belgium. It was largely due to his efforts that American soldiers were inoculated with paratyphoid serum.

One of the most unusual incidents of his career was made public in 1917, nine years after the death of President Grover Cleveland. Dr. Keen disclosed that he was one of three surgeons who performed an operation on the President in 1893 for the removal of a cancer. The operation, performed on the yacht of Commodore E. C.
Benedict while it was steaming up the East River, New York, involved the removal of part of the left jaw bone and substitution of a rubber one.

Champion of Lister's Antiseptic Practices in United States.
Dr. WILLIAM WILLIAMS KEEN was one of the most widely known surgeons in the world. He was also distinguished for his research and his writings, many of which have become text books in surgery.

Dr. Keen was credited with having much to do with the introduction of antiseptic surgery in the United States. He became a champion of Lister at a time when it was a serious matter for a physician to follow the teachings of that great English scientist. Dr. Keen had served through the Civil War. He knew at first hand the high mortality from blood poisoning which followed hospital operations, and it was largely due to his battles for Listerism that the system finally became the practice in the United States.

Dr. Keen also was a vigorous champion of the theory of evolution, which he defended in many articles. In a commencement address to the graduating class of the Crozier Theological Seminary at Upland, Pa., he said:
"Some theologians admit that

Market Street Benefit District

DISTRICT in which benefit taxes for the widening of Market street are being collected. The extent of the widening, between Van-derventer avenue and Seventh street, and the cutoff and extension to Third and Walnut streets are indicated. The condemnation proceedings included the two city blocks being developed as Union Station Plaza. In some instances, particularly in the southwestern part of the district, a minor portion of the property shows within the district boundary is not taxed, on the ground of no benefit.

By the Associated Press.
ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 8.—A dispatch to the semi-official newspaper Djumouriet from Bulgaria says 40 Turkish girls between the ages of 5 and 12 were massacred by Bulgarians in the village of Kesa-

Bulgarian villagers are said to have attacked the Turkish minority,

TELEPHONE STRIKE IN SHANGHAI

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, June 8.—Chinese telephone workers employed by the Shanghai Telephone Co., which serves the International Settlement and the French concession went on strike today in opposition to the installation of an automatic system which resulted in the dismissal of hundreds of operators.

The company, which is a subsidiary of the International Telegraph & Telephone Co., was maintaining a partial service. The strike developed just as the city was recovering from a postal strike which up to a week ago seriously

27 TO PAY FOURTH
OF BENEFITS FOR
MARKET ST. WORK

Remainder of $4,278,000
Total Is Distributed Among About 9000 Parcels of Property.

Although the $4,278,969 benefits for the widening of Market street are spread over a district of about six square miles, 27 property owners must pay virtually one-fourth of the total. The remainder is distributed among about 9000 parcels of property.

The benefit bills, issued May 15 and due immediately, range from a few dollars on lots at the extremity of the district to $185,072, on holdings of the Terminal Railroad Association. The Terminal must pay 9 per cent of the total benefits for the improvement. Asked whether the road was prepared to meet the bills, President Henry Miller said: "We're going to meet our share; we'll have to dig it up."

Benefit levies on the 26 other property owners, exceeding $10, 000 each, aggregate $618,439. On 46 other properties, where the levy ranges from $5000 to $10,000 each, the bills total $334,165.

The aggregate of benefits on all property in the district, not damaged, is $1,655,718. The remainder of the benefits is charged against the damages awarded owners whose property was taken for the widening. In 18 instances the damages were offset by benefits exceeding $5000, for a total of $152,145 in benefits. In each case a cash balance was due the owner. Total damages were $6,234,479, of which the city is meeting $1,955,519 with bond funds.

Most Expensive Improvement.
This is the most expensive street improvement yet undertaken by the city. Plans are under way to pave the widened thoroughfare by autumn. The widening, from 60 to 100 feet, extends along Market street from Vandeventer avenue to Seventh street—a distance of three miles—with a cut-off to Sixth and Walnut streets and an extension to Third and Walnut streets. The strip being added is coming from either side, varying in different blocks.

Collections of benefits at the Comptroller's office up to yesterday amounted to $276,796. The

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the cardinal principles that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunder, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrongs; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

As to War Disabilities.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ALBERT R. HOWREY'S interpretation of statistics is highly misleading and does not reveal the true situation as to the number of men actually disabled by reason of their military service. The soldier who died of influenza, pneumonia or other disease is just as dead as the soldier who was cut down by machine gun bullets. The soldier who survived the war, but later developed tuberculosis as a direct after-effect, is just as disabled as the soldier who was gassed and who developed tuberculosis as an after-effect. Both are war casualties and in both instances the tuberculosis is due to service. In both cases, it is very probable that these men were discharged with the notation, "Physical condition good." Tuberculosis seldom developed to a point where it was detected until after discharge from the army.

The business of discharging men from the army was conducted under high pressure. Doctors in the discharge camps were overworked and frequently only the most casual examination was made. The soldier was anxious to return home, and thousands concealed injuries and diseases to get out of the army and home to their people. Service records and many veterans are unable today to prove injuries received in France. It is unfortunate that there are several hundred thousand disabled veterans, unfortunately for our country and doubly unfortunate for the disabled men. Mr. Howrey speaks of an average payment of $25 a month. No one can live on that amount. When industry cuts down its working force, the disabled man is the first let out and the last back to work. Every disabled man would gladly give up compensation in return for the sound body he once had.

The disabled veteran will carry to his grave the burden placed on him by the war. No power can lift that burden and it is only lightened by compensation paid by the Government. The country has the burden of carrying expenses of the war, including the care of the disabled veteran. Those who seek to escape their part of the burden are 100 per cent slackers.

GEORGE B. TRACY,
Commander St. Louis Chapter, Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

American Factories in Foreign Lands.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I SUGGEST as a real cure for the depression that the patriotic Americans who have built factories in foreign countries—England, France, Russia and Germany—in which cheap labor is used for the manufacture of automobiles, farm machinery, etc., be obliged to pay the difference between the cost of production in their foreign factories and that of their American factories, and to the United States Government to be applied on the foreign war debts of each of the foreign countries where the factories are located. It would aid in balancing the budget and very probably there would be more activity in the American manufacturing plants than under the present circumstances.

A LEADER.

St. Louis vs. Pendergast.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A Boss Pendergast to rule St. Louis and the entire State, as well as Kansas City, St. Louisans who vote the Democratic ticket in the primaries Aug. 3 should vote for one of the four St. Louis candidates for Senator, and for Russell Dearthmont, a capable leader representing the eastern part of Missouri, who is opposed by Wilson, the Pendergast candidate for Governor.

Kansas City now has one representative in the Senate and should not have both Senators. St. Louis is entitled to the other place, to be vacated by Senator Hawes March 4, 1933. All four St. Louis candidates for Senator are ably qualified for the office and, in contrast to Howell and Wilson, have not been afraid to come out publicly and state their views on the various issues.

This year the St. Louis candidates are not waging a campaign but a crusade against this Kansas City machine ruling St. Louis and the entire State. Do we want this condition to come about?

T. C. JOHNSON.

Fighting a Bee Inspector.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A NEWS item recently announced the appointment of three deputy bee inspectors for St. Louis County. Please tell me how to get in touch with one of them. I have a bee I want inspected. It carries no license and has no permit to work in my yard. It shows up regularly each day in spite of the fact that my flowers are not yet in bloom. It hums around the little plants in hungry fashion and seems horribly fatigued by nightfall. It is a cute bee, but somehow I feel that it needs inspection badly. Its buzz isn't always clear. Maybe there is carbon in its buzzer. When it tries to alight on a blade of grass, it misses often. I believe it has defective brakes. If it is a real honey bee, rather than a bumblebee, it should be apprehended, tagged and headed toward some hive where its natural resources may be conserved.

A TAXPAYER.

THE OPPORTUNITY AT CHICAGO.

When the Republican national convention meets at Chicago next Tuesday, the party will be faced by a great opportunity. It can stand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

It can by so doing serve three excellent purposes: 1. It can force the Democratic convention, which follows, to do the same thing. 2. It can take the prohibition issue out of American politics. 3. It can set the excellent example of courage after 12 years of cowardice.

If the Republican convention dodges this issue, the Democratic convention will be in position to profit by that error. In that situation, if the Democratic convention declares for repeal, the Republicans will be in grave danger in such states as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Massachusetts.

They would also be in the dangerous position of not standing for anything at a time when the country needs leadership out of such a wilderness as few nations have ever found themselves in.

Few blessings could result to the country through party action comparable to that of having the liquor issue taken out of politics. The country has many serious problems to face. It has no time for the age-long and irreconcilable differences of opinion as to intoxicating liquors. That is a social question, and it is one which can be settled when the people are not engrossed with the problems of government.

There is, as Cervantes said, a time for all things. There is a time to debate prohibition, as there is a time to consider taxes, tariff and the national economy.

The number of those who realize this is growing daily. The action of John D. Rockefeller Jr. is admirable. Mr. Rockefeller believed in national prohibition and backed it. He was one of its chief props. He was quite honest then, and he is honest now. He admits that the eighteenth amendment is a failure. Like a wise man, he faces about.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler will take to the Chicago convention a repeal plank. If he is defeated in the Resolutions Committee, he will carry his fight to the floor. Like all those who sincerely desire to make headway in this field, and to purify both politics and the Constitution of that plague which prohibition has been to both, Dr. Butler wants his party to stand flatly for repeal. What he proposes is quoted by Mr. Rockefeller. Here it is:

We ask that the Congress submit a proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment, which proposal shall be submitted for ratification by conventions of the people of the several states in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution of the United States.

It goes without saying that to submit the question through the state legislatures would only continue the political mess in which we find ourselves now. The legislatures meet to consider affairs of state. Prohibition is not an affair of state. The attempt to make it one is what has occasioned all the confusion. The repeal of the eighteenth amendment must be passed upon by state conventions, called for the purpose of considering this question, and this question only. This is the key to the solution of the whole problem. It is useless to try anything less, as it will only further demoralize us to try anything else.

This is the opportunity which faces the convention at Chicago next week.

The party came into existence when it took a flat-footed position on the question of human slavery. It can go out of existence by refusing to take a flat-footed position on the question of prohibition.

MR. NOTTE'S COMPLAINT.

Mr. Notte says some of the members of the Citizens Committee on Relief and Unemployment are working both sides of the street. That is, they go before the Board of Aldermen urging additional relief funds and then, when the board is considering means of raising the money, they appear against the proposed relief measures.

That is a new interpretation of the Biblical injunction: "When thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth."

RADIO VANQUISHES BROOKHART.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa has been defeated by Henry Field for the Republican senatorship nomination, and the radio had a great deal to do with that upset. Potent as Brookhart's fiery oratory has always been, it was reduced to a whisper by Field's monotonous voice, transmitted through his broadcasting station to virtually every household in the State.

Field has long been agitating the ether of Iowa and surrounding states with his daily messages of homely philosophy and salesmanship. While Brookhart's voice has been making the rafters of the Senate chamber ring, the Shenandoah seedman has been introducing old-time fiddlers and selling huge quantities of garden seed, dry goods, groceries and other commodities by the hours he spent at the microphone. He plugged away in the campaign with similar persistence. When five Brookharts, in addition to the Senator, were discovered on the Federal payroll, Field made and reiterated the charge of nepotism with the same ungrammatical eloquence he was wont to devote to tomato plants and orchard sprays. And the radio was for him a vote-getter as well as a business-getter.

The arch-enemy of Wall Street in the Senate, and often a great help to progressive causes, Brookhart impaired his usefulness to the nation by such rank-tankerous provincialism as his expose of a Washington dinner at which liquor was served. Nine-tenths Puritan and one-tenth statesman, he was unhappy in the cosmopolitan community down on the Potomac, and he sometimes made it as unhappy as himself.

SUGGESTIONS FROM THE WOMEN.

The National League of Women Voters has prepared three planks which it will present to the Republican and Democratic conventions for inclusion in their party platforms. The first, dealing with governmental economy measures, emphasizes government's responsibility for human welfare, and to that end urges that health and educational standards be maintained. The second, relating to unemployment, calls for a co-ordinated system of Federal, state and local employment agencies and the promotion of unemployment compensation as a means of preventing the recurrence of periods of human suffering such as the country is undergoing today. The third plank takes the enlightened stand that armaments must be reduced before international confidence and prosperity can be restored and that it is the place of the United States to become a member of the World Court and otherwise show willingness to co-operate with the world in the settlement of its problems. These proposals show clear thinking on three vital matters at a time when clear thinking is sorely needed. However they fare in the hands of the platform makers, they are a credit to the National League of Women Voters. They justify its place as a formulator of public opinion in the United States.

MR. INSULL ADVOCATES.

In the language of the Associated Press, "Samuel Insull has resigned as officer and director in the companies of his public utility empire, extending through 28 states." He has also resigned from the receivership of the Middle West Utilities Co., subject to acceptance by the Federal Court.

Not to be captious about it, abdication seems a more appropriate word than resignation, for in all truth it is a kingly scepter Mr. Insull has laid down. In money it climbed high into the billions. The Middle West concern was a $2,500,000,000 company, and it was but one of four main groups. The dynasty as a whole furnished light and power to 5,000 American communities. Its financial set-up was a tower of Babel, at which the ordinary sightseer could only gaze and gasp.

Yet an effort was made, in the New Republic of May 4, to analyze the Insull colossus as to make it intelligible to the average reader. The writer, John T. Flynn, acknowledged that "the whole structure is too intricate to be followed." He attempted, therefore, "to explore a single line," as follows:

Middle West was purely a holding company. It owned a control in the stock of 14 large companies. . . . One of the companies controlled by Middle West is the National Electric Power Co. It has the usual collection of A and B stock. The B stock controls the whole. It amounts to $8,331,739. Every dollar invested in B stock controls capital assets eight times as large. Now, without dealing in precise figures, it will be seen that the Middle West common-stock dollar, which controls $1.70 in Middle West, when it gets into National Electric Power stock controls eight times as much, or $13.60. It is a long process to follow this through to the end. National Electric Power is itself a holding company. It in turn controls National Public Service Corporation, another holding company. This in turn controls Seaboard Public Service. And Seaboard Public Service controls the Georgia Power & Light Co. By the time it gets to the Georgia Power & Light Co., the Middle West common-stock dollar controls over $350 of Georgia Power & Light common stock. But here again, as the common stock controls the whole, and as every dollar of Georgia Power & Light common controls $5 of assets, it will be seen that the Middle West common-stock dollar, when it gets to Georgia Power & Light, controls five times $350, or $1,750.

If the traveler has not lost his way in that labyrinthine forest, he has arrived, at last, at this bewildering fact: "Mr. Insull has developed a scheme whereby $1 has been made to do the work of $1750 for him."

There were many brands of genius involved in this astounding conquest—financial, managerial, administrative, technological. It is no exaggeration to speak of this man's career as Napoleonic, and that final tribute has often been paid. As Mr. Flynn puts it, "At innumerable banquets Mr. Insull's fellow Olympians have proclaimed it." But the remorseless logic of events invites the inexorable question asked by Kipling: "How far is St. Helena from the guns of Austerlitz?" Austerlitz, the Capes of Trafalgar, Waterloo—they are all on the imperial map, and the Napoleon of electric power has taken passage for the rocky island. He leaves behind him a tottering empire, and the victimized buyers of his investment-trust stocks are counting their losses in how many anxious hours.

Insull and the likes of him have carried on the sinister tradition of the Goulds, the Fisks, the Daniels, to which reference was made yesterday—the piratical morals of business leadership which have brought us to our present pass.

A GOVERNMENTAL ANACHRONISM.

In Letters From the People yesterday, a correspondent lamented the fact that voters have a choice only between Democratic and Republican parties, and says, "The idea of voting a party ticket, as parties are today, is unbearable." He asks, "Why can't the voters have the privilege of voting for the candidates they want?"

Under our present electoral system, there is little hope for relief from the bondage of the two major parties. Means of escape, however, are provided in Senator Norris' proposal to do away with the electoral college. Senator Norris would print the names of the presidential and vice presidential candidates on the ballot, instead of the list of presidential electors. Candidates of a new party could get a place on the ballot by petition of a certain number of voters.

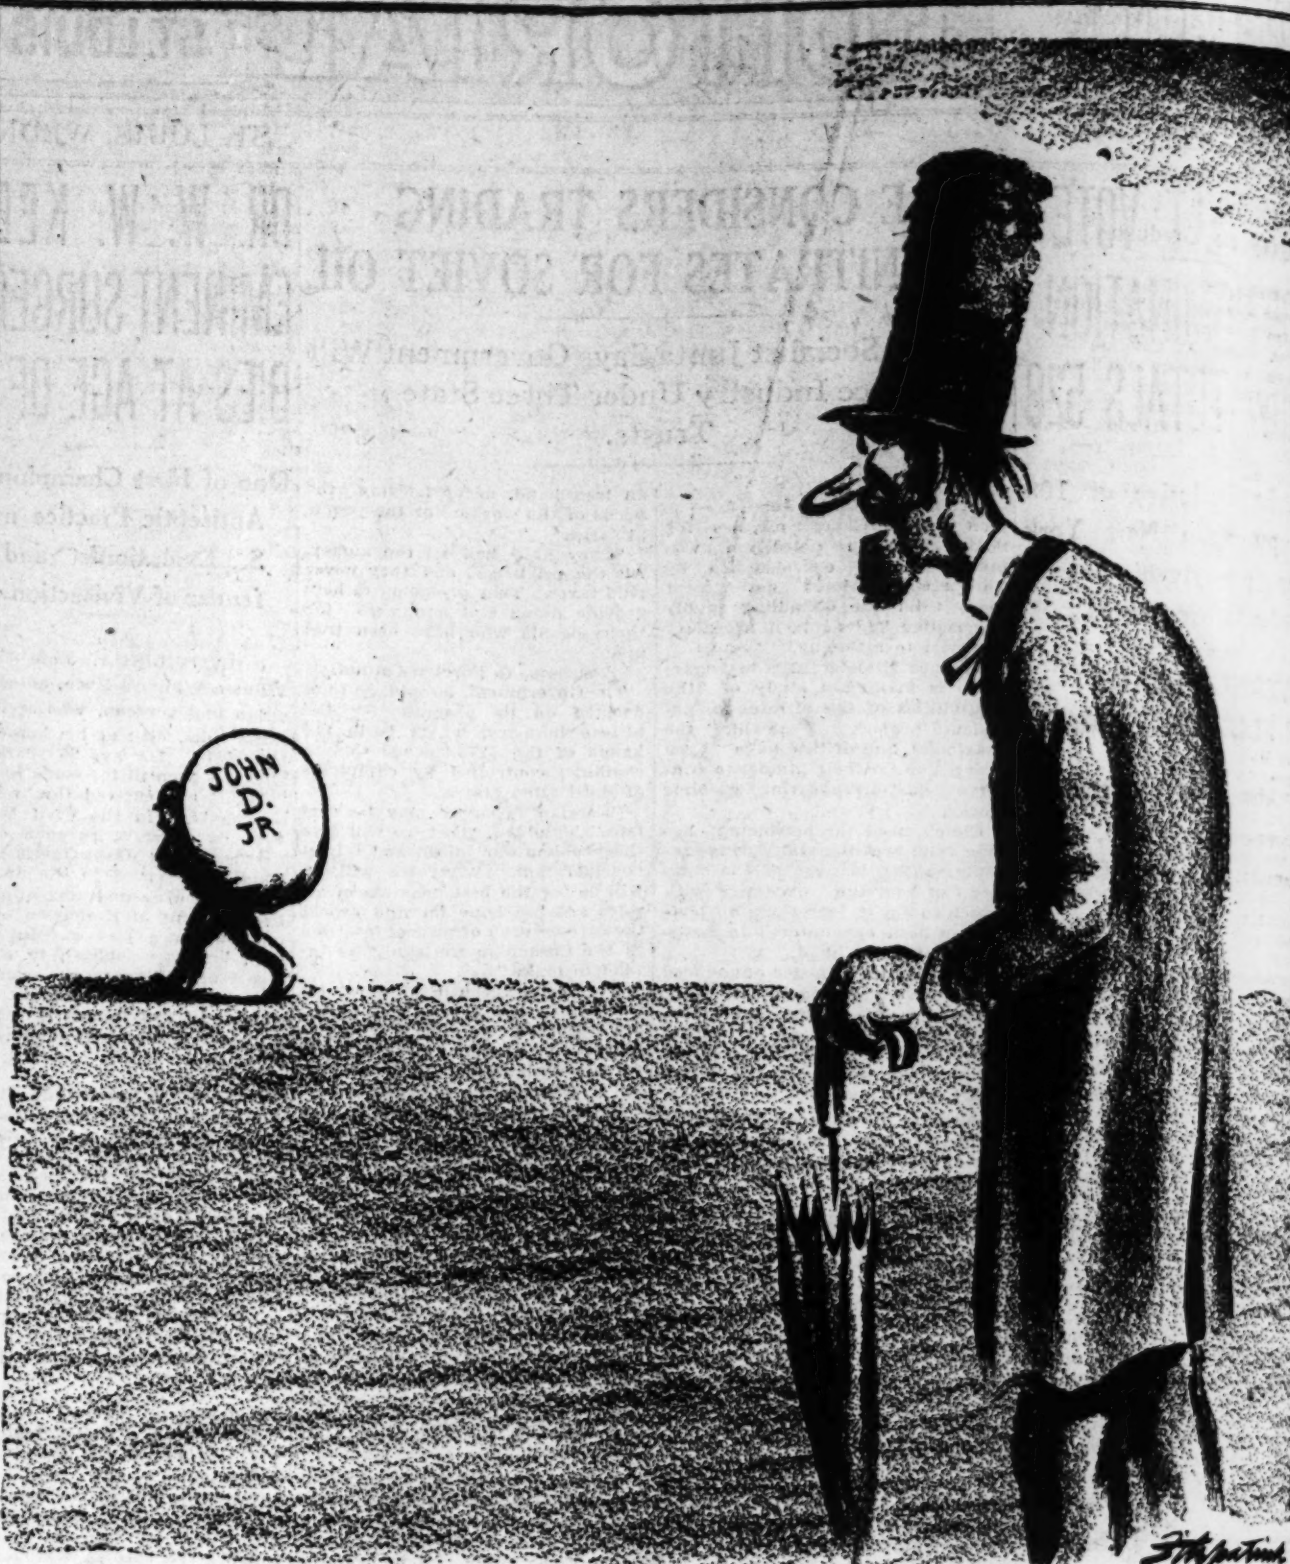

It has been calculated that the cost of a new party would be $5,000,000 under existing election laws, and the opposition of the two major parties would be terrific. But the old parties could not thwart placing of names on the ballot by petition, and that method would be far less costly. The electoral college is a governmental anachronism and should be abolished.

GOOD NEWS FROM PARIS.

Depression has brought to bear on France a more persuasive argument in the matter of armaments than all the advocates of conciliation have been able to offer. Premier Herriot, in his first address to Parliament, has announced his policy of applying a large part of the necessary budget cuts to the most logical place, the military arm. This he recognizes as an aid to disarmament, and so it is. France's adherence to her militaristic policy has been a major obstacle to the Geneva conference and previous efforts toward modification of the arms burden. Economic adversity will get at least on entry on the credit side of the international ledger if it results in reducing this barrier to world rehabilitation.

Another hopeful sign in Herriot's address is the advance, slight perhaps, but unmistakably an advance, toward liberalization of France's security policy. Something of an international view colors his declaration that his country "will search for security, not alone for us, but for all nations, large or small." The French desire for security has largely overlooked the interests of other nations, and the admission that they are also to be considered may open the way to rationalizing this hotly contested point. Herriot's proviso that this action will be "in the spirit of the Pact of Paris" (the Kellogg-Briand Treaty) is another hopeful augury. Heretofore, French policy has too often been grounded on the Treaty of Versailles. This invocation of the Kellogg Pact is a marker of progress.

Now if someone could only get the tree-sitting craze started again and interest the bonus boys in it.

"THERE GOES MY MEAL TICKET!"

Prohibition Repeal

By Walter Lippmann.

THE most effective argument against the repeal of the eighteenth amendment is that it would be "constructive alternative" to the repealers have to offer. Mr. Boole of the W. C. T. U. and Bishop Cannon make the same point, and it is obvious from Mr. Rockefeller's letter to President Butler that he is somewhat troubled too.

The repealers ought to welcome this challenge, for when the national prohibitionists ask for a "constructive alternative" they are obviously prepared to admit the principle that liquor might be legalized if it were adequately regulated. Senator Borah could not sincerely ask for an alternative to prohibition if he were determined to insist that nobody must ever drink liquor again under any conditions. The problem, therefore, is narrowed down to the question whether, by repealing the eighteenth amendment, the Federal Government can and will suppress the bootlegging industry he must, if he is realistic, see that the practical choice is between a controlled and uncontrolled liquor traffic.

Can it be seriously denied that a legal and regulated liquor industry in the wet states can be more effectively prevented from invading dry states than a bootlegging industry run by outlaws and racketeers? I doubt that it can be denied, and, therefore, repeal would in fact add those states which desire prohibition within their borders.

By repealing the Webb-Kenyon Act, they would enjoy all the Federal protection they now have under the eighteenth amendment, and besides, they would have the additional protection which would come from driving the bootleggers out of business and substituting a controlled industry.

It is fair to say that repeal is a "constructive alternative" to the situation which now prevails. Not only would it leave intact all the constitutional and statutory prohibition in the states, not only would it leave intact the Federal power to protect dry states, but it would revive all the temperance legislation which the eighteenth amendment has suppressed, and would for the first time in over 10 years empower the people of the thickly settled regions to protect themselves against the most gigantic industry ever known in the underworld.

What could be more "constructive" where the issue is one of constitutional powers than a measure which will leave all effective existing powers intact and revive powers which have been lost? Surely, Senator Borah does not expect the repealers to submit to him for his inspection all the laws and ordinances, which each state would make if the repeal of the eighteenth amendment restored its power to legislate.

The challenge of those who ask for a "constructive alternative" is answered when it is shown that repeal will increase and not diminish the real power of the American people to regulate liquor.

own prohibition effective if liquor was being sold freely on the other side of their borders. This, I take it, is Senator Borah's position. What he needs to consider now is whether dry states would not be better protected against invasion if in the wet states liquor were legal and regulated rather than illegal and unregulated. Unless he can convince himself that the Federal Government can and will suppress the bootlegging industry he must, if he is realistic, see that the practical choice is between a controlled and uncontrolled liquor traffic.

Can it be seriously denied that a legal and regulated liquor industry in the wet states can be more effectively prevented from invading dry states than a bootlegging industry run by outlaws and racketeers? CANOES AND MOTOR BOATS.

ROMANCE or no-romance, canoes must carry lights at night just like other boats, so Chief Tyrer of the Federal Bureau of Navigation has ruled. Since his word is law on all navigable waters, his edict will be disregarded at the peril of the canoeist. It is a very real peril in these days of motor boats. In some inland lakes where they abound, the danger to the occupants of unlighted canoes is even greater than on the rivers and bays and sounds of the sea. The highlight of the motor boat is not always a sufficient protection against carelessness at the wheel.

The canoe is indigenous to these lakes and streams. It has certain rights there which antedate even the office which Mr. Tyrer holds. Like other vessels and vehicles, it must adjust itself to the machine age, but the motor boat can help that readjustment by giving the Indian craft the right of way, which even Leviathan accords the humblest fishing smack.

The Receivership Racket

From the Chicago Tribune.

THE operating cost of the average apartment in receivership runs from $10 to $20 a room above normal costs under good management. At the same time, the revenue from rentals is from 10 to 20 per cent below average. The figures are those of Arthur Krugger, chairman of the board of governors of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Mr. Krugger observes that these high costs and low revenues combine to injure the interests of bondholders and equity owners. And the injury does not end there. When apartments in a building in receivership are rented at less than a fair market value for the space, owners of other buildings which are not in receivership are hurried along the road to insolvency.

Mr. Krugger suggests that some of the losses might be avoided if a committee were formed of competent building managers and maintenance men. The committee could be given standing by the chancellors in whose courts the foreclosure proceedings are pending and could be entrusted with general supervision of all bills for supplies and services and perhaps of rental schedules as well. Mr. Krugger thinks that such a committee could save a great deal of money for all concerned and incidentally speed the processes of the courts, which now are hampered by a mass of routine requests and orders which the committee could handle.

There is nothing wrong with Mr. Krugger's plan, except that it probably will not be put into effect. Everything which he wishes his committee to do should be done and would be done if the majority of judges in whose courts receivership proceedings are pending wanted them to be handled economically and expeditiously. If the judges were genuinely concerned to safeguard the interests of those who invested their money in real estate, many of the losses suffered at present because receiverships have been regarded as a form of political patronage would have been avoided.

Every judge sitting in chancery in Chicago could obtain in half an hour a list of competent corporations and individuals who might serve as receivers, and if appointed would save hundreds of thousands of dollars for investors. If competent management has not been obtained, it is only because some judges and their political sponsors don't want it. They prefer to use the receiverships as a means of obtaining political revenue and putting ward heelers to work as clerks, elevator boys and janitors.

Mr. Krugger's committee might have some value in shaming the judges into making use of its services, but the real remedy for the abuse is in the hands of the bar associations. Fortunately, the association seems to be aware of its responsibility and is publishing its investigation of the receivership racket. It is to be hoped that within a few weeks the association will be able to present an accurate statement of the facts regarding receivership abuses and to lay down a simple and unambiguous set of rules to govern judges and lawyers in these matters with disarming as a penalty for violation.

MISSOURI U. CONFERS 3 HONORARY DEGREES

Dr. A. Thompson Receives Award; Dr. H. W. Chase Speaks to Graduates.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 8. — Degrees were awarded to 788 students and three honorary degrees were conferred today at the nineteenth annual commencement exercises of the University of Missouri.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon three graduates of the university—Guy Thompson of St. Louis, president of the American Bar Association; Walter A. Stewart of New York, American member of the International Committee on Republicanism; and Walter Rautenbach of New York, president of the Splendored-Bethlehem Electric Co.

The commencement program was held in Brewer Field House, where members of the graduating class and faculty marched in academic procession after assembling in Jesse Hall.

Degrees were conferred by President Walter Williams, and W. A. Thompson of St. Louis, president of the Alumni Association, administered the pledge of allegiance to the graduates.

The Graduate's Responsibility. Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois, told the graduates it is their responsibility to behave as educated people.

Speaking on "Education in the Modern World," Dr. Chase defined education as not only involving competence, but a sense of values, morals, culture and appreciation as well.

The university's responsibility to the graduates, Dr. Chase said, is to protect them from the world in former years, but to try to help them to bring them some order and principle into the confusing and chaotic welter of modern life.

"In the world you are living," he continued, "it is your responsibility to behave as educated people. I do not mean merely as competent people in some one field. The necessity for competence is so enforced by the conditions of modern American life that you will develop it more and more."

Among awards to graduates were: Henry and Mary Cornelia Crumough Medal for Chemistry—Ester Thomas of St. Louis.

Scabard and Blade Medals—Robert Muller of St. James, Willard in McKee of University City, Eugene Field Scholarship, for Journalism student best equipped with practical ability and ideals—mon Hochberger, York, Pa.

Jay L. Torrey scholarship, for the most deserving woman Journalism student—Annabel Fair, Hallsville, Journalism Alumni Scholarship, for outstanding classwork in Journalism—Joseph William Hall Jr., Kansas City.

John W. Jewell Scholarships, for the five Journalism students advanced most deserving on scholarship and general merit—Elmer Perry Coy, Fair Play; Robert W. Maca, Kansas City; John Herbert

A. Thompson Receives Award; Dr. H. W. Chase Speaks to Graduates.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 8. — Degrees were awarded to 788 students and three honorary degrees were conferred today at the nineteenth annual commencement exercises of the University of Missouri.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon three graduates of the university—Guy Thompson of St. Louis, president of the American Bar Association; Walter A. Stewart of New York, American member of the International Committee on Rotations; and Walter Rautenbach of New York, president of the Splendor-Bethlehem Electric

The commencement program was held in Brewer Field House, where members of the graduating class and faculty marched in academic procession after assembling in Jesse Hall.

Degrees were conferred by President Walter Williams, and W. A. Stewart of Kansas City, president of the Alumni Association, administered the pledge of allegiance to the graduates.

The graduates' responsibility, Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, president of the University of Illinois, told the graduates it is their responsibility "to behave as educated people."

Speaking on "Education in the Modern World," Dr. Chase defined education as not only involving competence, but a sense of values, mental culture and appreciation as well.

The university's responsibility to its graduates, Dr. Chase said, is to protect them from the world as it is, but to try to help them to bring some order and principle into the confusing and chaotic welter of modern life.

Among awards to graduates were: Henry and Mary Cornelia Crum, Ph.D. in Chemistry; Esmeralda Thomas of St. Louis; Scabard and Blade Medals; Albert Miller of St. James, Willard John McJannet of University City; Eugene Field Scholarship, for journalism student best equipped with practical ability and idealism; Simon Hochberger, York, Pa.; Jay L. Tax Anticipation Notes Upheld.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—For the second time the Supreme Court en banc has upheld the constitutionality of an act passed by the 1931 Legislature, which gives the Buchanan County Court the right to issue tax anticipation notes. Judge Wilson said the law was not local, as contended by the taxpayers, "because the act applies to all counties which hereafter may have that population." (Not less than 5000 nor more than 15,000.)

OF BENEFITS FOR

largest bill paid was less than $5000. Some property owners have complained about these taxes. The amount of the individual benefits was made public March 23, 1928. There is no provision for installment payments of benefits. In some cases, particularly of large property owners, there are several bills, on scattered holdings, and these may be paid one at a time. Interest is due from the date of the bills, but is waived on bills paid by June 14. For the first five years 6 per cent a year interest is charged on delinquent bills, but for the next five years the rate is 8 per cent annually. When benefits are not paid in 10 years the city usually moves for execution of judgment, selling the property involved. Interest amounts to 70 per cent of the principal after 10 years. Benefit taxes constitute liens on real estate second only to general taxes.

Union Station Plaza Costs. One reason for the volume of benefits and damages in the Market street case was the condemnation of Union Station Plaza, covering the two blocks bounded by Eighteenth, Twentieth, Market and Chestnut streets, and included in the suit. More than one-third of the damages was for the plaza. Most of the heaviest benefits are on property in the immediate vicinity of this development.

The Wabash Railway is next to the Terminal in the size of its benefit tax bill. Its bill originally was $67,573, but it filed exceptions in Circuit Court and transferred the case to Federal Court where the charge was reduced to $53,893. The Wabash has carried the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, contending the whole levy on it is invalid because of defects in procedure, or, if not, that property used for strictly railroad purposes should not be taxed. Of the Wabash bill, $49,937 is on right-of-way. In addition, the Wabash has benefits of $2322 on other property which it is not contesting.

Benefits Vary Widely. Benefit charges by the front foot vary with the distance from the proposed improvement. East of Twelfth boulevard they range from $380 a front foot at the southeast corner of Sixth and Market and $200 at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market to 10 cents near Fourth and Cedar streets. Most of the property in this section, more than a block away from the improvement, is charged less than $20 a front foot.

In the area between Twelfth and Twenty-second streets is a similar range, from $1 a front foot to the maximum for the whole benefit district—$400 a front foot for the Eighteenth and Market corner of Union Station. The charge is $290 at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market to 10 cents at the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Chestnut and $72 at the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Market.

From Twenty-second street to Grand boulevard, the levy ranges from $1 to $65 a front foot, the highest being at Jefferson and Market, with $60 at Grand and Market. From Grand to Boyle avenue the range is $1 to $50, the highest being $50 at Vandeventer and Market. In the remainder of the benefit district, farther away from the western end of the improvement, the charge ranges from 50 cents to $7 a front foot, most of the property being billed at less than $5.

Says Supply Commissioner Offered to Reinstated Him If He Backed Mayor's Candidate.
Taylor F. Custer of 4445 Labadie avenue, who was one of about 60 Water Division employees dismissed May 31, has complained at City Hall that his discharge was for a political motive, not economy. He said that at a meeting of the Twenty-second Ward Republican organization on May 18 he indicated his preference for State Representative Joseph W. Davies for Republican City Committeeman to succeed George W. Hartman, who is city marriage license clerk.

Custer said he was called to Supply Commissioner Weston's office and told in the presence of Mayor Miller's secretary, Thomas Muldoon, he could have his job back if he supported Hartman. Weston explained today that he had obtained the job for Custer and sent for him to see if he would be got back. Weston and Muldoon said they had counseled Custer on the wisdom of political loyalty, since the Mayor favored Hartman, but had told him his discharge was due only to economy.

Hartman said he did not know about the discharge and had offered to try to get Custer's job back, but that Custer had refused his offer. Custer, who is married and has a small child, received about $100 a month.

Illinois Governor Will Try Tomorrow to Reopen Negotiations Between Miners and Operators.

BOTH SIDES ACCEPT INVITATION TO CONFER

Executive Assents Each Day Shafts Are Idle Adds to Economic Distress in State.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 8.—Resumption of wage scale negotiations between representatives of 50,000 miners who have been idle since April 1, and the coal operators was urged by Gov. Emmerson yesterday.

Backed by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, he asked the sale makers to reconvene here tomorrow morning.

"Each day of idleness in the Illinois coal mines adds to the ranks of the unemployed, increases the distress and privation of a large number of the State's population and makes necessary the providing at the expense of the taxpayers for those who are so unfortunate as to be unable to provide for themselves," said the report made to the Governor by the Emergency Relief Commission.

President John H. Walker of the Illinois Mine Workers and President W. J. Jenkins of the Illinois Coal Operators accepted the invitation for the conference.

"Problems Without Precedent." In describing the labor conditions in Illinois today, the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission in its message to the Governor said: "The State of Illinois is today facing problems of unemployment which are without precedent in its history. This State and its municipalities for months past have found it necessary to provide food and other necessities of life, for thousands of citizens who have been unable to find employment. Every effort must be made to relieve the distress by providing relief where necessary, but far preferably by

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Stocks sold back almost steadily for the third successive day today, wiping out a good portion of last week's recovery. The list closed with a weak tone, with a number of issues ranging from 1 to 5 points. The turnover approximated a million shares.

Even the bond market was inclined to yield in spots, although it maintained a distinctly better undertone than shares. Only a few stocks slipped to new low levels, but failure of buying to appear after Saturday's high was obviously disappointing. A few isolated weak spots unsettled the general list.

The Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit shares again broke precipitantly. The common lost about 4 and the preferred 1 point. People's Gas and Electric Telephone dropped about 5 points. Safeway Stores and Macy lost 4. American Telephone was a soft spot, declining more than 8 points, to break into new low ground. Consolidated Gas and Union Pacific lost about 2 to within a shade of its low. Woolworth reacted 2. Issues off a point or more included American Can, North American, National Biscuit, Bethlehem Steel, Corning Glass, Chesapeake & Ohio, National Electric Harvester and Alaska Juneau. Auburn rose about 2 points in short covering.

Foreign exchanges firmed somewhat. Sterling cables ruled 1/4 of a cent higher at 32 1/2. The French and Swiss francs, and Dutch florin were up slightly, but the Belgian franc, German marks rose 4 points to 33 1/2 cents for cables.

Steel production was reported at the lowest since last December. The wide open break in the B-M-T shares has been a disturbing influence this week, and has probably accentuated the reaction of the general market from Saturday's top levels. The common stock has reacted under 12, compared to the year's high of 50 1/2, and the preferred has dropped under 36, from a 1932 high of 78 1/2.

General Motors shares showed some reduction. Total sales to dealers were 67,739 in April, against 78,359 in April. Auburn's sharp price cuts are expected to accentuate the competitive situation.

Electric power production figures for the past fortnight show a reduction of 12.2 per cent from the period of last year, or a slightly more favorable comparison than in the preceding two weeks. For the second week of May, it was off from last year as much as 13.1 per cent.

Midwest reports from the steel trade were unfavorable. "Iron Age" said producers had slipped down three points to 20 per cent, attributing the drop to seasonal influences and also to uncertainty caused by the prolonged controversy over the tax bill. There has been improvement in structural lettings, it was said.

Recent strength of dollar exchange has strengthened the belief that gold withdrawals may be nearing an end. The closing was in structural lettings, it was said.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 8.—Business was moderate on the Stock Exchange. Foreign bonds and industrial issues improved while gilt-edged securities, American issues and others were easy. Sterling exchange eased on a better demand for the dollar.

PARIS, June 8.—Disappointment over the weakness in Wall Street, caused prices on the Bourse to break sharply in all sections.

CITY RECEIVES LOW BID
OF $6.76 FOR DEER SLUGS

Price, Which Is for Each Hundred-Weight, First Under New Specifications.

A low bid of $6.76 a hundred-weight for deer slugs for city institutions was received by the Supply Commissioner yesterday from the Laclede Packing Co. Bids are taken every quarter, the previous low being $10.50 a hundredweight by the Fischer Meat Co.

The bidding was the first under the new specifications reducing the minimum weight of the slugs from 150 pounds to 90 pounds. The change was made at the suggestion of Will Docter, a butcher, who predicted the city would get a better price by reducing the minimum specification, because more of the smaller-sized deer are received in this section.

It is estimated that the city buys 150,000 pounds of deer slugs each quarter. The saving under the Laclede Packing Company's bid for the three months will approximate $5600.

CITY MANAGER FOR
ST. LOUIS DISCUSSED

Proportional Representation Advocate Meets With Interested Citizens Here.

The possibilities of furthering a campaign in St. Louis for a city manager and election of city officials by proportional representation are being studied by George H. Hallett Jr., executive secretary of the Proportional Representation League, who is here on a tour which will take him to the Pacific Coast.

Hallett met informally with a small group of interested citizens last night at the Park Plaza Hotel. He told a Post-Dispatch reporter interested in proportional representation and the city manager plan has been increased by the problems of the depression and disclosures of corruption in municipal governments.

The Proportional Representation League recently was combined with the National Municipal League, with headquarters in New York City, and Hallett is associate secretary of the latter organization, which for years has been active in furthering the city manager plan.

A promising campaign is under way in New York, Hallett said, for the city manager plan and proportional representation, with the support of Judge Samuel Seabury as a remedy for the evils recently disclosed by a legislative investigation under his direction.

Cincinnati is pointed to by Hallett as the outstanding example of proportional representation in the United States. There the plan is used in election of a City Council of nine members which chooses the city manager. Candidates for City Council are nominated by petition and voted for at large, the quota of votes necessary for election being fixed at between one-ninth and one-tenth of the total cast.

The voter marks first choice on his ballot as well as second and third and additional choices, if he wishes. The entire vote is counted at a central point. When a candidate has received enough votes for election other ballots, if any, upon which he is first choice are counted for the second choice, or such other candidate as they fall to, in order of the voter's preference. If the full number of Councilmen has not been elected when all votes are counted, the lowest are eliminated and their votes counted for second or subsequent choice until the full number has been elected.

This has resulted in breaking up machine rule in Cincinnati, Hallett said. There has been an increase, he said, in proportional votes cast in the better residential districts.

Resolution Against Moratorium. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 8.—Representative Johnson (Dem.), Oklahoma, yesterday introduced a resolution declaring any further foreign debt moratoriums to be against the policy of Congress. He proposed, also, free distribution to the unemployed of all surplus cloth held by Government departments.

CHAPTER EIGHT.

"M. SHERWOOD, please," and the man at the desk in the only room in the Jonathan Club where women were allowed nodded.

"He's in the plunge, miss. Shall I have him passed there, or will you wait?"

"I'll wait." There was no hurry, now that she was here.

"What name?"

"Oh, no name," Julie didn't want to give her name. It was only too well known at the Jonathan Club. Dejectedly she chose a chair in the corner, and picking up a morning paper held it so that her face was shielded. The small waiting room had only one other occupant, a woman who had not even glanced up when Julie entered. A necklace of pearls was thrown carelessly over the back of her chair, and her purse with the maroon handle had slipped from her lap and was lying on the floor.

Julie tucked her shabby pumps farther under her chair. She was more conscious than she had been for a week of her clothes, of her dress, fast fading, of her hat which was beginning to be shapeless, of her gloveless hands, and the purse with its myriads of scratches on its once smooth surface. She had tried to be careful about her two outfits, but when she had to wear them night and day, it was no easy job. The first few nights she had come home from the Golden Slipper, she had thrown her clothes on the floor, too weary to hang them up. Too exhausted to put them away, longing for Hilda to take care of them.

Now, no matter how tired she was, she hung her dress up, and washed out a pair of stockings for the next day before she went to bed. The stockings were a problem. Two pairs were already gone in the week. Full of runs. Quite hopeless. In a few days, unless she found some money, she'd be forced to go stockless. Well, a lot of girls did. Mabel did, except in the winter, she said. Hilda were expensive.

She sighed when she realized that the pair of stockings she was wearing had cost $5.50, and that was the amount of money she wanted. So little, and at such a lot when you'd promised yourself you weren't going to ask for it, when you'd promised yourself you were going to earn your living for three months.

Max would give it to her, of course. She only had to ask him, but that was the trouble. She didn't want to ask him. And he wouldn't believe she had tried. In his heart he wouldn't.

Eight dollars a fifty cents. When she got it she'd pay Mr. Kemper, and start over, and then she supposed she'd come to Max again and again. An endless round after you'd once broken your word.

How careful she had been that night she had left home. Thinking it would be easy—this adventure that was getting harder and harder every minute.

For that was what she had thought, except for that moment when she had said good-bye to Max, at Times Square, and he was shaking her hand. He had warned her, told her she would have trouble but she hadn't believed him. So sure of herself, so confident she could get through it without help from anyone.

And here she was at the end of a week, wanting help. Wanting $5.50 more than she had wanted anything else in her life. Eight dollars and fifty cents was a fortune, so big she could hardly conceive its importance.

The woman sitting near was looking at her, and Julie held her paper closer against her face. Now the woman's eyes were on her shoes, she looked away and Julie breathed more freely. She didn't know the woman, but the woman might have seen her, and might recognize her.

Lovely, free, mannequin nails groped for the purse, opened it and drew out a jeweled cigarette case. Julie wished she had gloves, something to hide her hands. She had tried to do her best with them, but she wasn't Hilda, and she hadn't had much time to tend to them.

The clerk approached her. "Mr. Sherwood will be down right away, miss."

Panic after that, and the girl looked wildly around the room. Admitting to Max that she couldn't make a go of it, borrowing money when she had only tried for a moment he would be in the room, and she would be talking to him, asking him for the money, explaining.

"Utterly useless," he had said she was. Utterly useless, but utterly useless. She could see the dark balcony again, the night and the full moon. She could hear Max's voice, hard in the blackness, tense as he said the words. There was the smell of his clear mingled with the odor of roses from the garden, the dash of the surf as it hit the rocks below, and came up a fine gossamer veil-mottled with moonbeams.

So black, and Max cutting the blackness with those two words. Utterly useless. Utterly.

THE paper fell to the floor and Julie rose and ran to the desk. "I told you Mr. Sherwood would be right out, miss."

"I'm not waiting, I'm going."

Then she was flying out the door and down the steps into the

Reaches Her Goal After 23 Years

Miss Emma Bobb, Long the Main-spring of the St. Louis Election Board, Is Finally Promoted to the Chairmanship—She Is Recognized as an Expert on Voting Laws.

WHEN Miss Emma J. Bobb graduated from McKinley High School in 1909 she wasn't the least interested in elections, election judges or polling places, scarcely knew what they were; she was interested in putting her stenographic training to use. Somehow—"I haven't the least recollection of how it came about," she confesses—she got the job as stenographer with the Board of Election Commissioners of St. Louis. She has been with the board since, except for a period of six years; only instead of remaining the stenographer, she became a national expert on election laws, and now has been appointed by Gov. Caulfield as chairman of the board.

Before yesterday she was officially the chief clerk; unofficially, she was "the board." "Call Miss Bobb" was almost a slogan around the office, for call "Miss Bobb" it was whenever any knotty question of procedure came up or the election arrangements got tangled. Miss Bobb always straightened out things; she knew more about elections than anybody in the State, and probably in the country.

There was, for instance, that time back in February, 1925, when away to return in December, 1930, she was asked to re-appoint her as a commissioner. When the prospect of her appointment had been uncertain, it left her "up in the air," as it were, and so to make things certain she resigned. Which left the board completely "up in the air." For a municipal election was impending, the new board with one exception was unfamiliar with the routine, and Miss Bobb was not there to call. With the election only a month off, not a bit of the details of the election process had been started. As one of the office attaches remarked at the time: "It's a hell of a dilemma."

THE tangle was straightened out, of course, but Miss Bobb was never so thoroughly appreciated. Then for six years she was asked to return in December, 1930, she was asked to re-appoint her as a commissioner. When the prospect of her appointment had been uncertain, it left her "up in the air," as it were, and so to make things certain she resigned. Which left the board completely "up in the air." Miss Bobb is that kind of a person; she can do an immense number of things at the same time with efficiency with energy, and contagious cheerfulness. She may have wandered into the path to be an election authority by accident, but she certainly has become enthusiastic about the work.

A brisk, incisive woman with clear complexion, aquiline nose and a determined mouth and jaw—it might be called a prognathous jaw if such an adjective did not seem too unbecoming for one as feminine as Miss Bobb is of medium height and weight, with but one or two black lines. She wore a summery frock and white and blue kid shoes; a thoroughly self-reliant person, and a very feminine person.

She started to give a formal statement when asked for an interview; there were many things, many people, to attend to, and she does everything rapidly, concisely. "Oh, you want more than that; something about me? Of course I'll be glad to tell you what I can. Don't you think it would be better to talk in the board room?"

SHE sat down and began to talk, informally, it was as if she was giving dictation; her mind worked clearly, without hesitation. "I was appointed a stenographer for the board in 1909, when I finished high school. The work was all a mystery to me, but it all turned out to be so intensely interesting that I tried to make it mine by studying."

A girl came in and announced that someone wanted to speak to Miss Bobb and no one else. So the new chairman went to the phone on her desk, which was immediately the center of a large group of clerks bearing papers for her to pass on or to ask instructions of her, and of friends to congratulate her. She shook hands, glanced at papers, nodded approval, while using the phone.

"Then I was appointed chief assistant clerk, and in 1924 Governor Hyde appointed me as Republican Commissioner, to fill the unexpired term of John Holliday. After that term of office I resigned, and for six years just traveled and enjoyed myself. In December, 1930, I was asked to return so I came back to accept the position of chief assistant."

Again there was an urgent demand that she speak to someone over the phone personally, and her apologies for being so busy. "I love to come into contact with people," she resumed on her return. "Their grievances to them are the most important things in their lives, at the time, and though we have to listen to them by the score and they do not mean so much to us, I always try not to judge on that ground, but to understand the feeling of the person with the troubles. I always try to give a personal hearing, and get the personal slant on the complaints or whatever it may be."

"I think I can safely say that 95 per cent of those who come here go away satisfied; we make it a rule to do things with a smile. That's not merely a platitude, but really my policy, and also to keep the office strictly bipartisan. That's the only way to give the city clean elections. And by trying to get judges and clerks who are honest and clean, who will work with and not against us."

MISS BOBB has an air of modest self-confidence in speaking of her new position. She has no doubt that she can fill it, can handle it as efficiently as anyone. Her record, of course, justifies her self-confidence.

Aside from being the general manager, chief clerk and general factotum at the board office, Miss Bobb has systematically studied election laws. Although she has never taken a regular legal course, she is conceded to know more in her specialty than most lawyers.

MISS EMMA BOBB.

Much of the six years away from the board was spent going into the election procedure, including a trip to various European countries to see how they carried out their elections.

As a result, during the past 20 years she has played an important role in Missouri election history. She helped, among other things, to frame the primary law in 1913 and the general election laws in 1922. In the latter year, when Gov. Hyde called a special session on election laws she analyzed the laws, ironed out the conflicting sections, and went up to Jefferson City and managed to get her amendments passed.

Usually when questions or procedure came up, she was called on to find out what the law was. When the late Sheriff Mohrstadt died, there was no precedent on which to go for filling the office, so she studied the situation, back as far as 1848. The result was the casting of a special election was saved, as a successor was appointed by the Governor.

SHE makes a practice of trying to follow and study every important decision on election laws, throughout the country, so that if she is called upon, she can make immediate use of the information here. Elections are not only her life work, but her hobby. And clean elections are her goal.

She is no ardent advocate of women dominating the political world. But she does thing women have a great influence in politics.

"I certainly wish the women in politics would try always to excel. And it would be the fulfillment of my fondest dream if all women would take an increased interest in elections and realize the great power in the world is the ballot. But I do believe they are taking an increasing interest."

As a result, during the past 20 years she has played an important role in Missouri election history. She helped, among other things, to frame the primary law in 1913 and the general election laws in 1922. In the latter year, when Gov. Hyde called a special session on election laws she analyzed the laws, ironed out the conflicting sections, and went up to Jefferson City and managed to get her amendments passed.

Usually when questions or procedure came up, she was called on to find out what the law was. When the late Sheriff Mohrstadt died, there was no precedent on which to go for filling the office, so she studied the situation, back as far as 1848. The result was the casting of a special election was saved, as a successor was appointed by the Governor.

SHE makes a practice of trying to follow and study every important decision on election laws, throughout the country, so that if she is called upon, she can make immediate use of the information here. Elections are not only her life work, but her hobby. And clean elections are her goal.

She is no ardent advocate of women dominating the political world. But she does thing women have a great influence in politics.

"I certainly wish the women in politics would try always to excel. And it would be the fulfillment of my fondest dream if all women would take an increased interest in elections and realize the great power in the world is the ballot. But I do believe they are taking an increasing interest."

HOLLYWOOD, June 8.—His first talking picture, "The Song of the Eagle," is the name of the picture he is to write, being a promising title, "Song of the Eagle."

"As a matter of fact," the playwright-song writer of the picture declared, "I personally have waved the flag in a play only once. That was in 'George Washington Jr.' years ago, when that type show was very popular."

Because of that and subsequent musical comedies he authored and patriotic themes, his pre-eminence as a "flag-waver" has become a legend, and pursues him wherever he goes.

COHAN'S "Flag and Country" songs during the war endeared him to the nation. He was a tin pan alley's first song-writer away from home government. America made its own popular tunes, and principally he had Americanized the English ditties of the day.

He hasn't written a song in years, but he thinks a live, up-to-date, minute patriotic song must not be amiss now. "Only it must have to be mighty good," he said. The veteran theatrical figure now in his fifties, but looking younger despite his silver hair, regards this as his first visit to Hollywood. The last time he was in Hollywood was barely in its beginning as a movie center, but he played Los Angeles theaters with his show and acts many times.

TWO or three years ago he was en route to Hollywood to work for United Artists and write the film "The Song of the Eagle," which he had written and which he had written in Chicago and went back to Broadway. This time, while he was in Hollywood, he was to write "The Phantom President," which he goes back to New York, where there's a new play awaiting him.

Cohan's principal interest in pictures up to now has been as a server who attended only the pictures. Cohan's previous screen appearance was in silent pictures made the East.

LOVE! —all kinds!

MY DEAR MRS. CARR: Do you think any boy with the proper means and a girl will come to a girl's home in his car, stop in front and honk his horn, with a girl to rush out to greet him, and if he doesn't, drive off? E. J.

I haven't seen very much of the but I know of one or two instances of this flagrant rudeness, and consider it (as all courteous gentlemen will agree) a clear indication of laziness and selfishness, to do nothing of raw ignorance, that a girl should think of a man as having the "pride" to keep up his standing (if he has any) in the matter, whether some of the foolish boy-crazy girls countenance this or not. It is sufficient for me to see any girl to give the boy's "walking paper."

DEAR MRS. CARR: I have a daughter 16 years old, who is very pretty and has a charming personality. She has always been care-free and happy, but she has discovered the reason for her depressed state of mind. She

CONVENTION CALLS FOR SUBMISSION OF REPEAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 9. AFTER a bitter fight on the convention floor, the Republican State convention today adopted a plank calling for re-submission of the prohibition question to the people of the United States and repeal of the State dry enforcement act. The vote was 223 to 42. The plank calls for submission of a proposal for repeal of the eighteenth amendment to nonpartisan State conventions in accordance with Article 5 of the Constitution. "The State enforcement act is one of the most rigorous in the country and forbids the prescription of medicinal whiskey."

LONDON, June 9.—Dr. John R. Mott, president of the World's Alliance of the Y. M. C. A., and head of the International Missionary Council, said today he would welcome a thoroughgoing reconsideration of prohibition as a policy in the United States, on certain conditions. "I am not in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment," he said, "because, with all its limitations and certain disappointing circumstances in connection with its working, I believe its good results transcend those which have been unfavorable. "At the same time, I would welcome a nation-wide thoroughgoing reconsideration of prohibition as a policy on two conditions. "First, that such a reconsideration be in the form of a popular vote in the various states, in no way related to any political campaign. "Second, that it be in the form of a clear-cut expression of choice between (a) the present plan of nation-wide prohibition, and (b) a definite or concrete alternative plan. "I emphatically oppose a referendum in the form of a choice between (a) the present plan, and (b) its rejection as contrasted with no concrete substitute plan. "The New Generation. Dr. Mott is in favor of reconsideration for two reasons, he said. First, it would be a good thing for the present younger generation to study pro and con all the facts which have been developed in the prohibition experiment. This educational process would be possible because there would have to be considerable period of preparation for a nation-wide vote. "Second, many good men question the present policy and it would be wise to get their views." John D. Rockefeller Jr., who recently came out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, is one of those in whose judgment Mott has great confidence. He said he had seen Rockefeller's statement of his views, but he was sure Rockefeller had not altered his view about temperance. Still for Prohibition. Personally, he said, he is for prohibition, but he feels that the weakness in the present position lies in the fact that many people thought prohibition would enforce law, but the machinery for enforcement had been faulty. He also feels that the prohibition issue has become entangled too deeply in politics. If the law were resubmitted now, he said, he believes at least 30 States would vote to continue the present prohibition system unless a better plan
